Terrorists reach Tripoli

By United Press International
A Japanese jetliner carrying Japanese Red Army guerrillas with a group of hostages and freed radical prisoners arrived in Tripoli, Libya today after a long flight from Malaysia, Japan Air Lines reported in Tokyo.

The airline said it received information from Libya saying that the DC8 landed in Tripoli at 9:55 a.m. (8:55 p.m. EDT Thursday).

The announcement from Tokyo did not elaborate on the arrival of the plane, which took off from Kuala Lumpur at 5:42 p.m. Thursday Malaysian time and made a refueling stop in Colombo, Sri Lanka.

Arrival of the plane ended a tense drama that began in Kuala Lumpur last Monday when five of the Red Army guerrillas seized the U.S. Embassy there in a successful bid to force the release of a group of their comrades imprisoned in Japan.

Before the plane arrived, the Libyan government said it planned to treat the hostages and crew of the jetliner as guests, according to diplomatic sources. The government did not say how it would receive the guerrillas.

The guerrillas, who took the U.S. consul and 52 others hostage when they invaded the embassy in Kuala Lumpur Monday, let go the last 15 of their captives, welcomed aboard their five Red Army comrades released on demand.

Traveling with the guerrillas—four men and a woman—were nine crewmen flying the plane and four Japanese and Malaysian government officials acting as official guarantors of the terrorists' safety.

The jetliner took off at 5:42 p.m. (6:12 A.M. EDT) on the 17-hour flight to Libya. A Japan Air Lines official in New York said it was expected in Tripoli, Libya, at 9:30 p.m. EDT.

Chief Pilot Tokio Masuko was informed by his company's headquarters in Tokyo during refueling in Sri Lanka that the plane would not be permitted to land at Aden, South Yemen, as originally planned. JAL officials and Masuko then decided to take on enough fuel for a direct non-stop flight to Tripoli, Libya.

President ponders oil woes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford will not call Congress back from vacation for an emergency energy session but he may take steps to ease the impact on consumers if current oil price controls are allowed to expire at the end of August, the White House said Thursday.

Ford called his economic and energy advisers to an afternoon meeting at the White House and press secretary Ron Nessen said the President "has got some decisions to make now" to try to provide "an orderly transition" after fuel prices are free to start climbing to world market levels.

Saying he foresaw little chance of extending controls, Nessen added the President might take steps to "minimize the economic impact" on consumers.

Meanwhile, four senators urged the oil industry to voluntarily restrain price increases.

Sens. Cliff Hansen, R-Wyo., John L. McClellan, D-Ark., Paul Fannin, R-Ariz., and Carl Curtis, R-Neb., wrote the presidents of 61 major oil companies and independent petroleum producers urging pricing restraint.

Two other Republicans, Sen. William Roth, R-Del., and Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., had reported Ford was seriously considering calling Congress into special session to deal with energy matters.

But Nessen said Ford would "absolutely not" call Congress back from its recess which ends Sept. 3.

BEASTLY HOT—As Europe swelters in its hottest summer in centuries, "Lumpi" the lion rests for a moment after a long and refreshing bath in a pool in the Wallerstaetten, Germany safari park Thursday. Since the heat wave began, crowds have been packing the beaches and public parks and newspapers are giving readers detailed instructions on how to stay cool. (UPI)

Hottest summer in 200 years

Heat wave grips Europe

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — Europe sweltered Thursday in its hottest summer in up to 200 years.

It was so hot that railway tracks buckled in England and Holland. Street vendors in Stockholm ran out of ice cream. Local authorities in the Normandy region of France imposed water rationing. Crowds packed beaches and parks everywhere.

Newspapers throughout Europe were full of hints to readers on how to beat the heat. One bit of advice — avoid making love when the temperature soars over 86 degrees.

There was at least one plus — wine growers throughout Europe predicted the best vintage in years as a result of the unusual heat and long hours of unclouded sun.

Swedish weathermen called it the hottest summer in 200 years, with temperatures soaring to 101 degrees. In West Germany the heat was the worst since the turn of the century, and in some parts of Spain it was the hottest it's been in 50 years.

In Brussels Thursday the temperature hit 90 and temperatures have hovered around that level in much of Europe for the past couple of weeks.

The soft-drink shelves in Brussels supermarkets were nearly bare. The statistics bureau said the sale of beer and other drinks was up 50 to 100 per cent over last summer.

French farmers faced the prospects of crop failures if the heat continues but in Holland Thursday farmers in Bergen-Op-Zoom canceled a planned demonstration protesting their worsening financial situation because of the weather.

"They planned to drive into town on their tractors but decided it was too hot for that,"

a spokesman said.

In some Dutch towns civil servants shifted their hours to start work to 5 a.m. so they could get home by lunchtime.

Railways in England and Holland were plagued with buckling track and embankment fires which caused delays in service. In Spain power dams were reported filled to only 60 per cent of capacity, compared with 75 per cent last year, which could mean power shortages next winter unless the autumn rains are unusually heavy.

British doctors reported an upsurge in requests for sleeping pills and an unseasonably high number of general complaints.

Pet-loving Britons were cautioned to watch out for heat stroke in dogs.

Israelis, Egyptians reach final stages of peace talks

By United Press International

Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres said Thursday that Israel and Egypt are in the final stages of negotiations on a new interim peace agreement in the Sinai.

A government source said Israel planned to reply to Cairo's latest proposals by today in response to a reported hurry-up request from Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

In Beirut, a Lebanese military spokesman reported that Israeli raiders crossed into southern Lebanon early Thursday and kidnapped a man after blowing up his house. He also said advanced positions of the Lebanese army came under fire from Israeli territory early in the day, touching off an exchange of artillery fire.

Israel said the search - and - destroy raids were directed against Arab guerrillas. No casualties were reported in what was the fourth consecutive day of fighting along the border.

"We find ourselves today in the final stages of negotiations on an interim agreement," Peres told a meeting of the Israeli-American Chamber of Commerce in Tel Aviv.

Peres said Egypt's reply to Israel's latest proposals "will make a good basis for the continuation of the talks" but he did not provide details. However, he said "we will have to wait a number of weeks before we know the results."

Peres also said Israel is ready to negotiate with other Arab states.

"We should open negotiations because we favor the relief of tension and yearn for an agreement," he said.

But he said Israel had little to offer from a geographical standpoint. The Arab states have demanded the withdrawal of all Israeli forces from occupied Arab territory.

"We will not abandon our settlements on the (Syrian) Golan Heights but it is incumbent on us to test if it will be possible to reach an agreement."

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin met with his negotiating team for about two hours during the day to study the Egyptian response to Israel's proposals conveyed to Cairo last week. Peres said the Israeli offer was the "final one."

'Breakthrough' seems near in search for Jimmy Hoffa

DETROIT (UPI) — James P. Hoffa said Thursday night he believed information now under scrutiny by authorities would "hit the jackpot" and lead to the return of his father, missing labor leader James R. Hoffa.

"We are convinced we will hit the jackpot. We don't know if we have a big breakthrough until we evaluate it," Hoffa said. "We are hoping to find information that will lead to his coming back home."

Hoffa said he was convinced the information would "lead back to some people in the (Teamsters) International", which his father once ruled and hoped to lead again.

Hoffa said he did not believe, however, that an expected U.S. Supreme Court ruling permitting the elder Hoffa to reenter union activities had any direct bearing on his mysterious disappearance eight days ago.

Asked if the family believes that Hoffa is still alive and will return home safely, his daughter, Mrs. Barbara Crancer, answered "right."

Commenting on the continued silence of his foster brother, Charles L. "Chuckie" O'Brien, Hoffa again demanded that he take a lie detector test.

"His activities are suspicious and unexplained and he was in the area (of the restaurant) when my father was abducted," Hoffa said of O'Brien.

Hoffa said it was his understanding the FBI planned to formally request that O'Brien submit to a polygraph examination.

Hoffa said he had talked several times to Teamsters International President Frank Fitzsimmons, who had offered all his help in finding Hoffa.

Teamsters International Vice President Robert M. Holmes, his wife, and young son visited the Hoffa family's lakeside home Thursday night. Hoffa said Holmes was "paying his respects as a very dear friend of the family."

Hoffa also said his mother, Josephine, who was seen in the garden entertaining the visitors, was "holding up" under the strain.

A week-old report that Hoffa had recently managed to get $1 million from the $1.34 billion Teamsters' pension fund to finance his battle back to union power surfaced again Thursday and was denied all the way from James P. Hoffa, the missing man's son, to the FBI.

However, the massive investigation was reported focused on Hoffa's battle and campaign plans to regain the throne of the nation's most powerful union.

Regular police bullet 'relatively ineffective'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The most widely used police handgun ammunition, a .38 caliber revolver cartridge with a round nose bullet, is "relatively ineffective" and inferior to controversial "dumdums," a government study reported.

The .38 special, weighing 158 grains, had a stopping power of only 4.5 on a scale of 100 compared, to 54.9 of the 200-grain .44 magnum with jacketed hollow point bullet, which was rated tops in stopping power.

"The traditional police service round ... is relatively ineffective," the report said.

"This has often been dramatically demonstrated by the wounding or killing of a policeman who was able to shoot his assailant but was unable to incapacitate him," the report said.

The study also said the popular .38 special also has a greater tendency to ricochet and possibly injure innocent bystanders than some other types of ammunition.

The Army Ballistic Research Laboratory at the Aberdeen Proving Ground in Maryland conducted the study for the Justice Department's Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

The tests rated the soft lead unjacketed hollow-point, commonly referred to as dumdums, the highest.

Ford issues sobering warning on Mideast tinderbox

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford said Thursday Israel must be more flexible in peace negotiations with Egypt and warned a new Middle East war will mean a possible confrontation between the United States and Russia.

In a television interview, the President said of Israel and Egypt: "Both of those countries have to understand that flexibility at this crucial time is important for the peace of that area of the world and possibly for the world. Israel has to be more flexible, and I think Egypt has to respond."

"If there isn't movement in the Middle East right now the potential for war is increased significantly. And a war in the Middle East has broader potential ramifications than any time in the past and we have had four wars in the Middle East since 1946 or 1947."

Ford and Kissinger have blamed Israeli inflexibility for the collapse of the March attempt to negotiate an interim peace settlement.

In perhaps the most sobering warning Ford has issued on the Middle East tinderbox, he said: "A fifth one not only means that Israel will be fighting the Arabs but the potential of a confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union is a possibility."

In an hour-long interview with Paul Duke and Martin Agronsky of the Public Broadcasting System conducted in the glassed-in solarium on the third floor of the White House, Ford commented on Soviet behavior in the Middle East.

"They have acted in a very responsible way during my time in the Middle East."

Agronsky asked Ford about his two two-hour sessions with General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev of the Soviet Communist Party in Helsinki last week.

"We talked about the Middle East. We told them, or I told them, what we were doing. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger had a previous meeting with Foreign Minister (Andrei A.) Gromyko."

"I repeat what I said a month ago. Martin, that the Soviet Union has acted in a very responsible way. I think they understand the potential consequences of no progress for continued peace and understanding in the Middle East."

Asked his view of success in Kissinger's current attempt to negotiate a new interim peace settlement between Israel and Egypt, Ford said of the prospect of success: "They are better today than they were yesterday, and they are a lot better today than they were last March when the negotiations unfortunately broke off."

"I am optimistic on an increasing basis, but I have learned that until it is signed in black and white that I shouldn't predict that it will be finalized."

Kissinger meanwhile was awaiting Israeli reaction to Egypt's latest move in the negotiations. He plans to fly to the Middle East to complete the diplomatic agreement — the hopeful cornerstone of an overall Arab-Israeli settlement — only if he is virtually certain of success.

In the interview Ford also said:

"The refusal by the House to lift the ban on arms shipments to Turkey in July was 'the most serious wrong decision since I have been in Washington, which is 27 years.'"

He made a "thorough investigation" of charges by former Defense Secretary Melvin Laird and others that Russia violated the SALT I agreement on nuclear weapons. "On complete and total investigation I think any person who knew the facts as I know them would agree that there had been no violations of any consequence."

Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller will conduct a series of administration public hearings around the country this fall to hear citizens "tell us what they think is the answer to the welfare problem ... as a result of those hearings on a nationwide basis, we will formulate our recommendations in those areas that need changing."

"There is no doubt that the present welfare program either ought to be junked and a substitute put in its place, or the present welfare program has to be tightened up very, very greatly," Ford said.

When asked if he was going to dump Rockefeller as his 1976 running mate, "I think it is a tempest in a teapot," Ford repeated his earlier statements that both he and Rockefeller will have to fetch their own delegate support for the GOP convention next year but added, "I think the team of Ford and Rockefeller has done a good job and at this time I don't see any reason to change it ... when you have somebody that works on a team with you, why do you want to change?"

Judging his own political standing, "I think the record is going to be good and I think right now the public, if you look at the polls, is beginning to perceive that. The polls show that on a personal basis I am doing much better. It is not as high as I would like. But not many people in public life are doing very well in the polls."

He has cut inflation in half since coming to office but is not satisfied. He said the number of employed persons is increasing but he is not happy about the unemployment rate. "I think our steady, firm and responsible course is to meet the challenge of inflation and unemployment."

What's news

27 hurt in 727 crash

DENVER — A Continental Airlines 727 passenger jet taking off for Wichita, Kan., flew into turbulence caused by a thunderstorm Thursday and crashed 1,000 feet off the north-south runway at Stapleton International Airport. No one was killed. At least 27 persons were injured, one critically, and were rushed to two hospitals. A Continental spokesman said the plane carried 124 persons and a crew of seven. The airplane crashed on its undercarriage at the north end of the runway, and skidded several hundred yards before stopping. A small fire in the tail section was extinguished by airport firemen.

Good news for allergy sufferers

SAN DIEGO — The University of California announced Thursday it has created and tested a small form of protein that neutralizes allergy-causing agents and may lead to the successful treatment of 35 million allergy sufferers in America. Research organizer Dr. Robert N. Hamburger said the protein particle, when injected into the skin of patients, successfully blocks formation of "allergic" molecules that combine to react to such irritants as pollen and house dust. Hamburger said negotiations are currently under way with drug manufacturers to finance the large-scale testing of the protein, or peptide, to develop a long-lasting and inexpensive oral medication.

Hiss back in harness

BOSTON — Alger Hiss became an attorney again Thursday, 25 years after he was convicted of perjury in the "Pumpkin Papers" spy case which launched Richard Nixon on the road to the presidency. The conservatively dressed Hiss, standing at the swearing in ceremonies with five young men who had just passed their bar exams, took the three oaths that made him the first disbarred lawyer ever to be readmitted to practice in Massachusetts. Hiss, 69, was convicted in January, 1950, on two counts of perjury and spent 44 months in prison. He was disbarred in August, 1952.

Ford qualifies for election aid

WASHINGTON — President Ford has qualified for matching federal campaign funds, David Packard, his finance committee treasurer, announced Thursday. To qualify for federal funds, Ford had to raise $5,000 in each of 20 states in contributions of under $250, a total of $100,000. Under the new federal campaign law, the government will match half of the $10 million presidential primaries spending limit. Ford has said he expects to spend the full $10 million limit. "We are particularly pleased to meet this qualifying requirement just one month after the committee opened its doors," Packard said in a statement.

White House secretary sacked

WASHINGTON — White House social secretary Nancy Lammending Ruwe has been fired, informed sources said Thursday. Mrs. Ruwe was told Wednesday afternoon by deputy assistant to the president Richard T. Cheney that she was being removed from the party planning position she has held for several months, the sources said. There have been recurring complaints about Mrs. Ruwe's work and reports that she could not get along with the rest of the staff, they said. Mrs. Ruwe, a New York socialite who came to Washington at the beginning of the Nixon administration in 1969, was married recently to Nicholas Ruwe, former deputy chief of protocol at the State Department. Mrs. Ford attended her wedding.

Airline strike over

MINNEAPOLIS — Northwest Airlines settled a three-day pilots' strike Thursday and struggled back into limited operation. The airline said the settlement would cost an additional $55 million over three years. The strike of more than 1,500 pilots was settled at 3:45 a.m. after a 12-hour session shepherded by W.J. Usery, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service and special assistant to President Ford on labor-management relations.

Now we'll know

GREENWOOD, Miss. — Singer-composer Bobbie Gentry says a movie version of her "Ode to Billie Joe" being filmed here finally will reveal what Billie Joe's girlfriend threw off the Tallahatchie Bridge. "It will be authentic," said Miss Gentry, 32. "We'll be filming right there on the Tallahatchie Bridge."

Controversial topics on ABA's agenda

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Legalizing prostitution, amnesty for Vietnam war deserters, protecting press freedom and limiting political campaign spending are among a host of resolutions proposed for approval by the American Bar Association at its annual meeting in Montreal next week.

Preliminaries start this evening with a speech by former Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski. He is expected to discuss the legal implications of the Watergate scandal one year to the day after Richard M. Nixon told the nation on television he would resign from the presidency.

The ABA expects more than 5,500 members to swell the population of Montreal over the weekend. They will bring along over 6,500 spouses and children.

Aside from debate over several controversial resolutions, highlights of the convention include an address Monday by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and more Watergate discussions with Nixon's White House lawyer, James D. St. Clair, and Watergate trial Judge John J. Sirica.

FBI Chief Clarence Kelley, Supreme Court Justice Lewis Powell and Housing Secretary Carla Hills are among other speakers.

The prostitution issue is likely to cause the most heated debate in the 340-member House of Delegates. The house postponed action on a similar resolution at its meeting in Honolulu last year.

The resolution presented to the house for approval calls on all state legislatures to end laws against prostitution on grounds they discriminate against women and invade individual privacy. The resolution also opposes modified control of prostitution through licensing.

Rural areas not safe from smog

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government reported Thursday smog in both rural and urban areas is more widespread than originally thought and it might be necessary to extend pollution controls into the countryside.

The Environmental Protection Agency released a new study showing that smog, primarily produced from automobiles, is developing in widespread patches of the country, especially in the East, rather than being restricted to the narrow areas around big cities.

"As a result it may be necessary to expand to an area-wide basis some of the pollution control measures now in effect only in urban areas," EPA Administrator Russell E. Train told a news conference.

The report comes just a few weeks after President Ford asked Congress to further relax the Clean Air Act by freezing the exhaust standards for cars for the next five years.

By United Press International

Two important economic forecasting groups predicted an early end to the recession Thursday but a 1.2 per cent rise in wholesale prices in July indicated that the brakes on inflation are not holding very well.

The wholesale price increase was the third in four months and was caused primarily by a seasonal rise of 10.7 per cent in grain prices, attributed at least in part to the proposed huge sales of wheat and corn to the Soviet Union.

The view that the recession is virtually ended came from Standard & Poor's, the Wall Street statistical agency, which based its conclusion on its latest estimate of the Gross National Product.

Standard & Poor's said it now believes the GNP will rise 5 per cent in current dollars this year to almost $1.5 trillion and that, after being discounting for inflation, the true growth rate will be almost 4 per cent, enough to justify the view that the recession is about at an end.

Moreover, Standard & Poor's said it expects the growth of the GNP to accelerate to an annual rate of 6 or 7 per cent in the next three or four quarters and that inflation may subside enough so the GNP growth in real terms will climb to around 6 per cent.

The other encouraging forecast came from First National City Bank of New York, which said a modest improvement in the shrinkage of corporate earnings from last year's rate during the second quarter meant more than the figures indicated.

Citibank said it reached this conclusion because the quality of profits reported by big corporations is so much better this year than last. This year's earnings, the bank's economists said, do not include nearly as much price inflation and inventory profit and are solidly based on physical tonnage and units of commodities and services sold.

Citibank found corporate profits for the second quarter down 22 per cent from a year ago.

FBI budget reaches $500 million

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI disclosed Wednesday its annual budget runs to half a billion dollars, including $82 million for secret counterspy and crime-busting operations.

FBI official Eugene W. Walsh reluctantly released some details of the bureau's financing under questioning by members of the House intelligence committee, but he would not disclose how much is spent on particular projects or how many spies have been caught.

Walsh, however, did estimate "off the top of my head" that the bureau has spent $500,000 so far in its search for Patricia Hearst.

In public testimony before the House panel, Walsh, assistant director of the FBI's Administrative Division, said the Bureau's budget for the current fiscal year is $499.5 million.

"How much of that is secret?" asked committee chairman Otis Pike, D-N.Y., who complained Congress has been approving the FBI budget for years with no questions asked.

"I can't tell you exactly," Walsh responded.

Anti-Red sentiments grow

Heat continues on Portugal's junta

LISBON (UPI) — Angry crowds spat on the most left wing of Portugal's top three rulers Thursday when he showed up in a northern city to try to stem rising military discontent.

Later, the military's moderates demanded the government junk plans to form a Communist-style nation.

The Socialist party joined in the onslaught against the governing junta, charging that Portugal was on the edge of a political abyss.

Both the military moderates led by former Foreign Minister Melo Antunes and the Socialists accused the hierarchy of the Armed Forces Movement of betraying the original goals of that movement.

"It is necessary to reconquer the confidence of the Portuguese, finishing with appeals to fear and the incitement to violence and resentment," the military moderates' document said. "We must construct a society of tolerance and peace and not a society of subjected to oppression, which cannot be realized with the current ruling team, even with changes."

The moderates said the governing troika created 13 days ago "lacks credibility and is manifestly incapable of governing."

In the town of Fafe, 200 miles north of Lisbon, Communists barricaded themselves inside party headquarters to escape crowds angered by the fatal shooting of one man and the wounding of five other persons during an anti-Communist demonstration.

The threat of a military rebellion rose and army units in the north openly denounced Prime Minister Vasco Goncalves and what they said were his pro-Communist policies.

The central government rushed more left-wing troops loyal to the Lisbon regime to Porto, 180 miles to the north, in an apparent attempt to head off the crisis and military security chief Gen. Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho flew to the north for emergency talks with military commanders in the region.

But in Porto, as Carvalho was leaving a restaurant under the protection of combat-equipped troops and police, crowds broke through police lines to spit on him and pound on his car.

Carvalho, the most radical member of the three-general junta ruling Portugal, returned from Cuba last week and warned of harsh repression against opponents of the military rulers.

The bathroom is one of the most dangerous rooms in your home. Each year in the U.S., nearly 900 people die of bathroom injuries, and 187,000 are hurt seriously enough to require hospitalization or emergency-room care.

Safety experts recommend non-slip surfaces on tubs and showers and securely-mounted grab bars to reduce the chance of falls, one of the most common hazards.

Burns from scalding water (115 degrees or above) are a real danger. Mixer faucets on shower and sink will help. Or you can lower the thermostat on your hot water heater. There are electrical hazards when people with wet hands try to use electrical appliances. Easiest danger to avoid is metal pull chains. Most effective is a ground fault circuit interrupter (now used mostly outside) that will shut off power in case of shock.

There's a good bathroom safety checklist in the Design Guide for Home Safety offered by the U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. It costs $2.35.

Razzle-dazzle on tap at air show

EAST STROUDSBURG — A razzle-dazzle, immelman and roll... followed by a quick succession of loops, hammerheads, snap rolls and cork screws should keep the fans spellbound Saturday.

Sorry, folks, it's not professional wrestling with monster-wrestlers Haystack Calhoun and Gorilla Monsoon.

Rather it's Connie Marsh — "petite, daring, well-educated and adventurous woman married to an Eastern Airlines captain."

That's the billing of Mrs.

Marsh of Levittsville, Md., who will appear along with other stunt pilots at the Pocono Air Circus 2 p.m. Saturday at the Pocono-Stroudsburg Airport, East Stroudsburg.

Sponsored by the Monroe County YMCA, the air circus will include skydivers, parachutists, glider pilots and aerial acrobats.

Half the proceeds from the show will go to the YMCA, while the other half will be given to International Aerial Missions, a Catholic organization that provides medical supplies throughout the world.

"We're hoping that the air show will help us make up our $13,000 deficit we had last year," said Robert Bieber, YMCA executive director.

"We need the money just for operating expenses — sponsoring kids, putting in a new piece of equipment or even buying a new bus," he said.

Ticket sales for the air show have been slow, so far, even though community support for the project "has been tremendous," Bieber said.

"I don't know the exact number of ticket sales, but sales have been increasing rapidly," he said.

It was earlier reported that the YMCA hoped advanced ticket sales would reach 3,500 tickets.

Local groups who have volunteered services to aid the YMCA project include Pocono Mountain Jaycees, Mainline Music, Bushkill Ambulance Corps, Marshalls Creek Volunteer Fire Co., Bell Telephone, Exchange Club, Papillon Contracting, Ray Hartmann and Sons and local Boy and Girl Scout troops.

In addition to Mrs. Marsh, the show will include several stunt pilots and Ski Safari, a skydiving group.

Before the show, Bieber said a model airplane club will present a radio-controlled airplane show.

At 10 a.m. persons can also take a scenic ride in a plane for $3 each.

Tickets for the Pocono Air Circus are $2 and can be purchased at the YMCA, Stroudsburg.

Dropping in for the YMCA air show will be parachutists, one of the special features rounding out a program of dazzling stunts by high flying dare devils.

Barrett grants variances

MOUNTAINHOME — Two variances were granted by the Barrett Township Zoning Hearing Board at a special meeting held Wednesday.

On July 17 the board heard testimony from James Walter and LeRoy Shoemith on their application for a variance for non-conforming use buildings each man owns in the township.

Walter requested a variance to change a building located in a residential zone on Playhouse Lane. The building will be used as a television showroom, retail outlet, and repair shop.

The building had previously been used as a storage facility for television parts and as a dropoff point for a commercial bakery.

Walter's application called for increasing the size of the building 20 feet by 20 feet in order to adequately transact his television operation.

Exterior dressing up will be done to the existing building. Plans also call for a 20 by 60 foot blacktop parking area.

The facility has adequate sewerage facilities and is the required 15 feet away from other property lines.

Shoemith was granted a variance for remodeling, renovating, and repairs to an existing building on Rte. 390. The facility is of non-conforming use and in a residential zone.

Shoemith's plans call for remodeling the interior for office space for his construction company. There will be no alterations to the structure other than exterior dressing up that will have a desirable effect on the area.

Greene eligible for policy to cover flood damages

GREENTOWN — Greene Township Supervisors have been notified by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) that effective August 6 it has been accepted into the National Flood Insurance Program.

According to J. Robert Hunter, acting federal insurance administrator, all individual property owners in Greene are now eligible to buy flood insurance protection at affordable federally-subsidized rates.

This offers property owners more extensive coverage under the expanded program authorized by the 1973 Flood Disaster Protection Act.

Hunter said, "We think the new, expanded National Flood Insurance Program offers the best way of protecting property owners from the ravages of floods, while easing the burden on the general public."

"Since flood insurance is now available," Hunter added, "the law requires that it must be purchased by owners of property in areas identified as flood-prone by HUD, in order to be eligible for virtually all forms of Federal or federally-related financial assistance for building purposes in those areas."

This would include FHA or VA mortgages, loans from the Small Business Administration, or loans from any federally-regulated or supervised banks and savings and loan institutions.

While flood insurance is available to all residents of the community, Hunter emphasized that the federal economic sanctions against building assistance, will not apply to property outside the danger zones.

Under the expanded program, broader coverage can be obtained for all buildings and their contents. The limit of insurance for single-family homes is now $35,000, and $100,000 for other residential and non-residential buildings, at the subsidized rate of 25 cents per $100 of coverage. The rate goes to 40 cents per $100 for non-residential buildings.

The contents of all residential buildings can be insured up to $10,000 per unit at 35 cents per $100 of coverage, and the rate goes to 75 cents per $100 for the contents of all non-residential structures up to a maximum of $100,000 in coverage per unit.

Policies are effective immediately during the first 30 days the insurance becomes available. After the first 30 days there is a 15-day waiting period.

The policies can be purchased from any licensed local property insurance agent or broker.

According to HUD, the General Accident F & L Assurance Corp. Ltd., 414 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, has been designated as the flood insurance servicing company for this area.

Agents and brokers may obtain policy forms, rates, flood insurance manuals, and any other necessary information from this company.

The FIA, Hunter explained, is in the process of publishing maps showing the special flood hazard areas in approximately 20,000 communities across the country.

Hunter congratulated the Greene governing body for taking action before the July 1 deadline imposed under the Act for enrolling in the program.

Neighbors request Pike housing funds

MILFORD — Pike County Commissioners were asked to give up two years of federal housing grants Thursday by the executive director of the Wayne County Housing Authority.

Lumped together as one region by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), Pike and Wayne counties are eligible for yearly grants for low-income housing.

Thomas Shepstone, Wayne County's housing authority director, asked Pike Commissioners "to forego their share of the funds for two years."

He said Wayne County has already planned a 75 to 100 unit housing project for the elderly and would need two years worth of HUD funds to supplement a grant by the state Department of Community Affairs.

Since Pike County does not have a housing authority, commissioners decided to negotiate an agreement that would give the funds to Wayne County for two years. Pike County would receive later federal allocations, but details of the agreement still must be worked out.

The federal housing allocations for this year have still not been made, according to Shepstone.

A release from HUD states the federal program will finance up to 35 new units of low income housing or subsidize 65 units of existing housing.

In other business, the commissioners took the following actions:

— Approved the appointment of Mrs. Jean Steuhl, Greeley as an interim secretary to District Magistrate George Hatley. Hatley's son, Joseph Hatley, was originally appointed to replace Mrs. Carolyn Purdue, who is on vacation. However, Hatley's son became ill and the emergency appointment of Mrs. Steuhl was made earlier this week, commissioners said.

— Announced that the commissioners would open bids Thursday, Sept. 4 for the redecoration, repair and painting project at the county courthouse.

— And approved an increase in the mileage rate for Mental Health and Mental Retardation (MHMR) employees from 12 to 15 cents. Commissioners also approved a standard MHMR janitorial salary rate of $2.75 an hour as well as the reclassification of two MHMR employees.

Pike County nursing home qualifies for state loan

HARRISBURG — A Pike County nursing home is one of a number of Pennsylvania nursing homes which has been approved for a loan from the state's Nursing Home Loan Agency, a board established after voters approved $100 million in state borrowing aid to nursing homes some 14 months ago.

Hillcrest Home, Inc. of Pike County is listed as eligible for a $500,000 loan under some $1.1 million approved Thursday for loans.

The Nursing Home Loan Agency board also gave tentative approval to another $6.1 million in loans that could get a final okay next month. Successful loan applicants pay 6.5 per cent interest on the state loans.

The board's action in approving the funding coincided with a charge by Rep. Sherman Hill (R-Lancaster) that Gov. Milton J. Shapp had neglected the nursing home loan program by giving first priority to his presidential aspirations.

"I urge you to curtail your campaign effort and return to work here in Harrisburg," Hill said in a letter to the governor.

The NHLA board also approved a list of 12 architectural-engineering firms to serve as consultants and heard a warning that the high cost of borrowing may price the NHLA out of business after $25 million.

Banking secretary Carl Dellmuth said the current high rate of interest of the bond market could forestall borrowing beyond the first $25 million obtained at 6.44 per cent interest.

"Interest of 8.5 to 9 per cent could put us out of business before we're barely started," Dellmuth said.

NHLA Director Alan Rauzin said the agency has no immediate plans for additional borrowing.

Dellmuth has also asked the NHLA staff to give the board a tentative administrative budget by next month. Rauzin said the staff had spent in the last three months about $275,000 of its start-up budget of $500,000 allocated by the legislature.

The board also approved a conditional requirement that loan applications exceeding $250,000 be required to involve local financing for 15 per cent of the loan. But the board agreed to review any application of a nursing home if it is unable to get 15 per cent of local financing.

Viet vet honored at depot

TOBYHANNA — James Patrick Johnson of Hazleton will receive a Bronze Star, an Air Medal, and a Purple Heart Thursday at Tobyhanna Army Depot. Five years ago he lost both legs while fighting as a Black beret Ranger in Vietnam.

On October 14, 1970, Private First Class Johnson led a six-man search and destroy pursuit team across a field. He stepped on a mine booby-trapped with a 155-millimeter shell.

"I'm lucky to even be here," said the 26-year-old double amputee.

The ceremony was arranged by the Bureau of Veteran Services, Scranton, according to Robert Zehn, director of the bureau's Veterans Action Center.

With his wife Bonnie and five children, aged 3 to 9, looking on, Johnson accepted the medals from Colonel William E. Dasch, depot commander. Military personnel formed for the awards ceremony.

When George Washington ran for the Virginia House of Burgesses in 1757, he provided 28 gallons of rum, 50 gallons of rum punch, 34 gallons of wine, 46 gallons of beer, 2 gallons of cider royal, and 3.5 pints of brandy, at a cost of 39 pounds and 6 shillings, for 391 voters in his district. He won.

The Pocono Record

Poconos must save reputation

The sort of headline that ran in Wednesday's Record — "Pocono developer indicted for fraud" — does no good either to other area developers nor to the Poconos itself.

What can be done to prevent recurrences? The development industry can police itself, but private powers are limited. The worst that can happen is that the Pennsylvania Vacation Land Developers Assn. can refuse to accept suspect developers into its membership.

Local municipalities, however, can do more. They can require developers to hew to certain standards and provide substantial penalties for those who don't. But in many cases that isn't being done.

For years now, once-rural communities have been content to hand out subdivision and building permits as fast as they are requested and take in the tax money. And then, when it turned out that developers were half-finishing roads and asking municipalities to take the roads over to complete them, local governments began passing ordinances requiring a road to be not only up to grade but surfaced as well.

This was no hardship to the developers, who simply walked away from the problem, but it was to the homeowners, who now had to form a homeowners association, raise the money and finish the roads themselves before they could get municipal services.

The prevailing view seems to be that people who buy development property are out-landers who don't deserve any better. That's a wrong-eyed view and doesn't speak well either for the residents nor for the governments of the Poconos — nor for the Poconos as a whole, for that matter.

A person doesn't have to have Pocono ancestors dating back for five generations to be a bonafide resident. All he has to have is a home here and a tax bill from one of the area's taxing agencies. That makes him a person with a right to expect some return from the tax payments — in other words, local services.

Services can mean many things. In this case, we're not talking just about snow removal or police protection, but protection from unscrupulous developers and builders. Common sense will tell you that if a developer or builder does shoddy work or fleeces future residents, that is going to cost local government at some time when the lousy work has to be undone. It would seem reasonable to put restraints on developers and builders now. That's one service that would not be too costly, but certainly would be appreciated by those people who come to the Poconos looking for a respite from the pressures and hucksterism of the cities.

Why not have stringent zoning, subdivision and building codes? The person who plans to do things correctly isn't bothered at all, since he wants no problems and desires a good reputation for work well done. If the guy who cares about none of these aspects of honesty, but only wants the fast buck, is scared off, no one loses anything. There is much to gain and little to lose by moving in that direction.

What the Poconos cannot afford, neither its residents nor its developers, is to earn the sort of reputation that has resulted in exposes and investigations depicting Florida, New Mexico and Arizona as hotbeds of land fraud.

Those honest developers in the Poconos — and there are plenty of them — should put pressure on local supervisors and councilmen to enact tough and thorough codes that will protect not only potential land buyers, but our reputation as well.

the "five per centers," the Kevauver Crime Committee investigation, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation revelations, the college-basketball fixes.

"I think the time has come for positive proposals to deal with the ethical problems of government," Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois said in opening the hearings. The date was June 19, 1951.

Nothing much came out of those hearings — the proposal to establish a national ethics commission was defeated on the vote of a single senator — and only a fool would say conditions have improved since. Yet, at the end of this tunnel, there is light.

Maybe "ethics" is a misnomer. "I don't use the word," says John W. Gardner, chairman of Common Cause, the self-styled citizens' lobby. "It suggests elements in human behavior that are not easily legislated and it suggests, too, that man is perfectible. You really cannot legislate morality. I suppose that when Hammurabi set forth that first code of laws, some court cynic muttered, 'Why's the old fool chipping away at that stone? Human nature will never change.'

"You can't pass legislation to stop people from undoing other people. You can't stop the banker from stealing the widow's mite.

"But I'll tell you what you can do: You can make it a hell of a lot tougher."

And in the aftermath of Vietnam, Watergate, Agnew, and so much more, that's what's happening: Politicians are being watched more carefully, from town hall to the White House.

Little straws in the wind.

"Not long ago," says John Anderson of Illinois, the third-ranking Republican in the House of Representatives, "you could go down to the Page (Airways, Inc.) terminal and watch all the members of Congress getting aboard the corporate jets for free flights. You don't see many now."

And big haystacks.

In dozens of states, tough new laws have been written, and a fair number have been passed. For the first time, politicians have to show and tell. Show where their money comes from; tell whom it goes to. And why.

Mills and the Masons

Jack Anderson

with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., whose escapades with stripper Fanne Foxe became the talk of the nation 10 months ago, will be hauled before his Masonic lodge on August 22 to answer for his misconduct.

The recuperating Mills, once a power in the House, now a forlorn figure, will be tried by a five-man commission at his home lodge in Kensett, Ark.

Just as his name was fading from the headlines, he must now face new notoriety. He could be expelled in disgrace from the fraternity. This would be a bitter blow to Mills, a 33rd-degree Mason, who twice was awarded the Grand Lodge Medal of Honor for bringing "credit and glory" to Masonry.

Mills told us he would fight the charges if the fraternity goes ahead with a formal trial. If all Masons who have a drinking problem were expelled, he added bitterly, the fraternity would lose half its membership.

Sources familiar with the preparations say the trial is set. The Grand Master, Lee Overstreet of Texarkana, Ark., is determined to expel Mills, they say.

Overstreet is described as a stern leader who is determined to clean up Masonry and discipline the wrongdoers. Only if Mills is contrite and confessional, say our sources, can he expect any leniency.

Overstreet refused to discuss the Mills' case with us because, he said, "I am involved."

The embattled Mills said he would contend, in his own defense, that his alcoholism was a sickness that required treatment, not punishment.

A degenerative disc in his back, he said, had started causing him excruciating pain two years ago. Although surgery repaired the disc, he continued to suffer severe attacks of pain.

He took painkilling drugs which were "addictive," he said. He also began to drink. The combination led to his erratic behavior with the striptease star.

His personal Watergate came in the early hours of October 7 when Fanne Foxe, otherwise known as the Argentine Firecracker, clawed Mills' face, bolted from his Mark IV Continental and leaped into Washington's Tidal Basin.

The squalid publicity didn't deter him a month later from making a surprising appearance on the stage of a Boston burlesque theater to plant a kiss upon the Argentine Firecracker. "This won't ruin me," he boasted erroneously.

Not long afterwards, he checked into a Washington hospital with "complete mental and physical exhaustion." He subsequently confessed at a press conference that he was an alcoholic.

He now attends Alcoholics Anonymous meetings every night. "I feel remarkably well," he said. He believes he will be rehabilitated and able to return to his congressional chores in September. But he will never go back to the work schedule of the past, which wore him out, rubbed his nerves raw and caused him to reach for the bottle.

He had been apprehensive at first, he said, about the attitude of his congressional colleagues. But he is now at ease with them. "They have been exceedingly cordial," he said.

Has he heard from the Argentine Firecracker? Not since his breakdown, he said.

Stories Behind Words

By William Penfield

Clue

The Minotaur, according to Greek legend, was a monster that lived in a labyrinth on the island of Crete. The labyrinth was a network of passages so intricate that anyone who entered could not find his way out.

Theseus, a legendary Greek hero, set out to slay the Minotaur. Ariadne, daughter of the king of Crete, gave Theseus a ball of thread which he unwound as he went into the labyrinth. After slaying the Minotaur, he followed the string back to the entrance.

The legend became familiar in many countries, including England. In Old English, a ball of thread was called a "clue." In allusion to Theseus' use of the thread, "clue" — later spelled "clue" — came to mean any material or information used in solving a mystery or puzzle.

Conventional farming techniques self-destructive?

Nicholas Von Hoffman

so rapidly, however, that interest in organic or non-chemical agricultural technology is no longer confined to those who wish to sell to the food-fad market.

Organic efficiency

Washington University's Center for the Biology of Natural Systems has just completed a study comparing a group of Corn Belt organic farms with another group of comparable farms using traditional energy-intensive methods of cultivation. The difference in yields was too small for the investigators to tell whether this was owing to the different methods employed or to chance. On the other hand, the differences in costs were significant.

The organic farms brought their crops in at an average cost $16 an acre lower than the conventional farms. "As a fraction of value of production," the study concludes, "costs on the organic farms were an average of 19 per cent, compared to 27 per cent on the conventional farms . . . . Another important implication of our results is that the profitability of organic farms, as compared with conventional farms, is less vulnerable to decline in crop prices."

So perhaps this is a case of an ill-wind blowing a bit of good in our direction. The Kissinger-Exxon-Shah of Iran conspiracy to drive oil prices up past tolerance into misery may ultimately provide our farmers with decent profits, relative protection against the Earl Butz boom-and-bust price cycle and incentive to use a low-energy technology that more people are coming to think results in better and safer foods.

That is the hope and the promise. But the Washington University study is a long way from being conclusive. Many more farms in many different parts of the country must be studied over a longer period of time before we can reject the contention that we must choose between high crop yields and attendant slow chemical poisoning or fast-snuff-out starvation.

There are other promising leads, one of which is called no-till or no-plow farming. It fell to Edward H. Faulkner (see his "Plowman's Folly," University of Oklahoma Press, 1943) to look across the fields of spring one day and ask himself, why do farmers plow it up every year? It certainly can't be to promote plant growth because, as Faulkner observed, the most luxurious vegetation is always along the fence lines where the farmer never plows.

Faulkner concluded that farmers plow because farmers' fathers plowed. True, when they get finished plowing every year, their fields look neat, but the neat rows are obtained at the cost of much extra labor, soil depletion requiring large amounts of fertilizer and consequent ecological injury. He also reasoned that plowing made crops much more susceptible to the damage of both flood and drought while actually promoting weed growth.

Besides being a creative theoretical agronomist, Faulkner also seems to have been a practical horticulturist. In his book he tells how he experimented until he had worked out ways to grow crops without ripping the cover off the soil and exposing it to the debilitations of rain, sun and wind. No-tillage agriculture does away with the plow entirely and substitutes the disc-harrow, which simply chops up the ground cover or green manure and lets it lie on the earth's surface, where it nourishes plants' root systems while retaining water against dry periods and preventing the terrible leaching of land of its nutrients.

One Department of Agriculture official estimates that as much as 25 per cent of our farm land will be cultivated under the no-plow, no-till system this year. The savings to farmers are impressive. No-tillage cultivation costs for labor and tractor fuel are approximately one-third those of conventional plowing methods. At least as important for people who want to get into farming and don't have too much money is the possibility that no-plow technology demands such limited equipment usage that poorer farmers can rent their tractors instead of buying them.

Faulkner believed that no-plow methods would need the smallest amounts of chemicals. He thought he was devising a system by which the farmer would be replenishing the earth as he cultivated it and that his crops would prosper without herbicides inasmuch as their own optimal environment would make them healthy enough to repel marauding bugs and blights.

Thus far, most no-till farmers haven't given up their dependency on chemicals, but farmers don't rush to try every new trendy idea. It's taken more than 30 years for Faulkner's agronomy to win this level of acceptance. Maybe it's just as well for us to move slowly. If all the farmers rushed out and embraced a fad that didn't work, the rest of us would starve next year.

debt borderline and may be crossing it:

You are continually lengthening the repayment periods on your installment purchases and putting down smaller initial payments. At the same time, your interest charge load is mounting just because you are sinking deeper into debt for longer periods.

What you owe on your revolving charge accounts also is climbing steadily. You're never out of debt to the local stores.

Month's bills

Before you have finished paying last month's bills this month's are piling in. You're always behind in your payments and are regularly receiving notices that you're delinquent.

You are so bedeviled by bills coming at you from so many sources each month that you turn to a lending institution or lending agency for a loan to "consolidate" and pay off all your debts, leaving you with just this one big consolidation loan to meet. But you continue to buy on credit — adding new bills on top of your one big debt you must pay each month.

Here are more specific guidelines on how much debt is too much debt:

Do not owe more than 20 per cent of your yearly after-tax income (not including your home mortgage, though). This means that if you earn $800 a month in take-home pay, or $9,600 after taxes a year, you debt limit would be about $2,000.

Do not owe more than 10 per cent of the amount you could pay for out of your income within the next 18 months. Again, say your take-home pay is $800 a month; that gives you 10 per cent or $80 for debt repayments each month. With this you could pay off $1,500 over 18 months. Your safe debt limit would be about $1,500.

Do not owe more than one third of your discretionary income for the year — meaning the income you have left after the basic needs of food, clothing, and shelter. Once again, say you earn $9,600 in take-home pay for a year. Your basic living costs are $6,360 over the year. Your discretionary income is, therefore, $3,240. By this measurement, your debt limit is $1,080 — one-third your discretionary income of $3,240.

Who are the individuals and families who get caught in an intolerable debt squeeze? Can we draw a fine but critical line between a healthy load of loans and an unhealthy, unbearable load?

The overextended-credit individual is usually a faceless vexation in our society, according to a University of Wisconsin professor who drew some years ago this detailed portrait of the overextended-credit family:

The family is young, has more than the average number of children and an average income.

The parents are easygoing, carefree and impulsive.

Although the husband, in most cases, is satisfied with his job, one in three wives is dissatisfied with her husband's pay.

The family doesn't read anything, not even the daily newspaper.

The parents tend to blame their plight on "circumstances" or superficial backbreaking straws such as pregnancy, temporary loss of job, buying a car — and thus they feel their troubles are not really their fault.

Neither husband nor wife assumes clear responsibility for managing the family's finances.

The family moves more often than the average U.S. family.

Most consumer debts are adequately cushioned by incomes and savings, financial assets and earnings potentials. But there is a minority always in deep financial trouble — in the 18-to-24 age bracket and particularly the under-$10,000 bracket.

The crucial difference between sound and unsound borrowing is whether or not you are carrying too much debt at any one time. Okay, then how much debt is too much debt?

The following are clear warning signals that you're moving dangerously close to the

Good Humor not laughing over 244-count indictment

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Good Humor Corp., the summertime Pied Piper of the kid world, got some bad news Thursday—a 244-count New York state indictment charging it with making and selling contaminated ice cream.

The company also was charged with falsifying business records to hide the fact from state inspectors.

Brooklyn District Attorney Eugene Gold said that since 1972, Good Humor "knowingly produced, shipped, and sold ice cream products containing a bacterial count higher than permitted by law."

Gold said in 1973, the Air Force rejected a shipment of Good Humor ice cream for having a too high bacteria rating. But instead of destroying the ice cream, Good Humor shipped it as a gift to the Jamesburg Home for Boys in Jamesburg, N.J., he said.

Gold said records showed that some ice cream samples contained a bacteria known as coliform at a level 200 times that permitted by law.

Other samples had a bacteriological rating "too numerous to count," Gold said, adding that the coliform bacterial count permitted for ice cream is 20 colonies per gram.

Donald Puttitz, an associate microbiologist at New York's Beth Israel Medical Center, said that coliform bacteria is found in the large and small intestine tract of humans and animals.

He said coliform bacteria "indicates there is most likely fecal contamination...it shouldn't be found in ice cream. If it is, there has been fecal pollution which could come from animals."

Asked to comment, David St.

Clair, a legal representative for Good Humor, said coliform has been found to be "not harmful to health or dangerous in any way."

St. Clair said only the New York plant was involved in the indictment. He said it was a "rather antiquated" facility and was closed in April.

State Commissioner of Agriculture and Markets John Dyson said that while the coliform bacteria does not produce illness, it is "indicative of unsanitary conditions, which raises a potential for illness."

Dyson said he will hold hearings Aug. 28 in Albany to consider revoking the firm's license to sell ice cream.

Dyson said he would send inspectors to the company's Baltimore plant, which now supplies the New York area.

Gold said the firm kept two sets of quality control records.

Sunday movie ban enforced

LOWER ALLEN TWP., Pa. (UPI) — Cumberland County District Attorney doesn't like to be a spoil sport. He likes movies, but nevertheless is enforcing a local township ordinance which prohibits them from being shown on Sunday.

"I enjoy a good movie as much as anybody," says DA Harold Sheeley. "But the law's the law, and I have to uphold it whether I agree or not."

Sheeley has been cracking down on violations of a 1939 Pennsylvania law that allows voters in municipalities to decide whether they want to allow movies on Sunday.

Most townships have approved Sunday movies. In neighboring New Cumberland and Camp Hill boroughs, movie houses can be open all day.

But the voters never got around to the question in Lower Allen Twp., and Sheeley said he received at least three complaints from irate residents who have no time for Sunday movies at a new shopping center's cinemas.

Employees of the Capital City Mall Cinemas have been arrested four times since early July. The fine is $50. Sheeley won two convictions, one case was dismissed and he is awaiting a hearing on the last charge.

"It's kind of strange," Sheeley said. "I've never had complaints about the kinds of movies or anything like that. They show some real nice pictures, you know, movies about dogs and things like that."

The theaters are owned by Carroll's Development Corp. of Syracuse, N.Y. Company officials were not available for comment, but the firm's lawyers have filed appeals in Cumberland County Court.

And they are drawing up petitions to circulate in the township asking for a referendum in the November election where voters can choose to approve or reject Sunday movies.

Looking for Democratic corruption

12-county PennDOT probe urged

MERCER, Pa. (UPI) — A special grand jury Thursday asked the state attorney general to investigate operations of the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation in Mercer and 11 other counties for possible corruption involving members of the state Democratic party.

The jury said it had found evidence of an alleged conspiracy in Mercer County to use PennDOT to raise money for

Judge puts up roadblock in search for Patty Hearst

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The government's search for fugitive newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst hit another road block Thursday when a federal judge gave a key witness more time to prepare for her grand jury appearance.

Judge R. Dixon Herman granted Micki McGee Scott's request for a delay after her attorneys accused the government of harassment and illegal wiretapping. U.S. Attorneys denied the charge. She was scheduled to testify Thursday.

The FBI suspects she and her husband, radical sports figure Jack Scott, rented a northeastern Pennsylvania farmhouse where Miss Hearst and two other Symbionese Liberation Army members allegedly hid for a time last summer.

"It is vitally important for the government to proceed with its investigation," said Federal Prosecutor Brandon Alvey. "Of course we could always survive, but a delay would hamper the government's investigation."

"Is it vitally important to proceed today?" Herman asked. "I'm inclined to grant some time. Ten days ought to be ample under the circumstances." He granted a delay until Aug. 18.

Herman also granted a delay for Martin Miller, a friend of the Scotts who was also scheduled to face the grand jury Thursday.

The jury also said it had found evidence the alleged conspiracy in Mercer County was "part of a large scale conspiracy involving state officials or members of the state Democratic party and that a similar pattern of conspiracy may exist in other counties in the state."

The jury asked District Attorney Joseph Nelson to contact state Attorney General Robert Kane and request that he investigate PennDOT operations in Allegheny, Westmoreland, Fayette, Cambria, Greene, Erie, Lycoming, Dauphin, Montgomery, Philadelphia and Delaware counties.

In addition, the jury requested that an audit be made of Pennsylvania State Democratic Committee funds and that the 12 people it previously had recommended for indictment be indicted on additional charges of conspiracy and macing (obtaining political contributions in return for receiving state contracts).

The jury also recommended further indictments against Mercer County Democratic Chairman Richard Miller of Greenville for allegedly setting up a paper trucking company and for trying to get kickbacks on a state contract for snow removal.

Gas in cow belches one solution to energy crisis?

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Education Editor

"In every cow burp there's some methane gas," Mark Radtke said, his eyes growing wide.

"And it's been estimated that the gas produced by all the cows burping in Wisconsin in a year could give that state help in the energy crisis. To make electricity. To heat houses."

Radtke, 23, from New Canaan, Conn., talks a lot about odd sources of energy — cow manure, cow burps, wind, sun, water, municipal sewage plants.

It's all in this year's work for the Massachusetts Institute of Technology graduate and President of SCORE (Student Competition on Relevant Engineering).

SCORE's contests give teams of engineering students from top universities a chance to compete the way football teams do.

This year SCORE is running the intercollegiate Energy Resource Alternatives competition.

More than 40 student engineering teams from across the U.S. and Canada will participate in the finals starting Tuesday in Albuquerque, N.M.

For five days the teams will field test their original designs to convert non-conventional energy sources into power for the average household or small industrial operation.

They have been working on the energy machines since October.

The finals take place at Sandia Laboratories, one of the nation's top government energy research facilities.

Radtke said only at Sandia was there the capability to test the full-sized prototypes of the projects under the varied conditions in which they are expected to operate.

"The competition challenged student teams to design and build a total energy package which uses sources other than petroleum, to provide heat, hot water, air conditioning and electricity," Radtke said.

Solar air conditioners, wind-powered turbines, synthetic gas producers and a tidal energy trap will be among the projects competing during the five day event.

"We have more than 800 undergraduate and graduate students participating this year, including two from England," said Doug Matzke, coordinator of the competition and a University of Wisconsin senior.

"We're encouraging the engineering student to 'get his hands dirty.' When you build your own piece of equipment from scratch, you discover there's a practical side to engineering that you don't learn in the classroom," Radtke said.

A sampling of projects in the field test:

— Clemson University in South Carolina. Students took a farm's most plentiful resource, cow manure, and converted the waste into a valuable fuel, methane gas. The potential danger of methane gas — whether from human or cow waste or burps — is explosion caused by careless sparks. In this project, the danger is avoided by keeping the gas in an airtight enclosure. The Clemson engineers say this makes the methane as safe as the gasoline in an auto tank.

— One Massachusetts Institute of Technology team enters a windmill that accepts wind from any direction and self-starts at lower velocities — five miles an hour. Electricity is produced.

— University of Oklahoma engineers at Norman show how to use solar energy to heat an oven, provide air conditioning, run the refrigerator and heat water for a single family dwelling.

— From another MIT team comes an unusual method of providing hot water to homes. It uses a large black plastic bag filled with water. The bag is hung under the eaves of the house and a mirror arrangement underneath the bag focuses sunlight on it, heating the water.

— From Iowa State University there is a solar powered steam engine to run a generator and an air conditioner.

— From Michigan State University, a solar, wind and hydrogen system. The energy output is controlled by a computer.

— From University of Houston in Texas. Harnessing the power of waves to generate electricity. The system consists of a dam installed in a narrow inlet channel adjoining a small reservoir. The waves are heightened artificially.

'They'll slit our throats'

Tribesmen afraid of Laotians

NONG KHAI, Thailand (UPI) — "We'll never go back, they'll slit our throats."

The middle-aged Meo tribe chief glowered across the Mekong River at neighboring Laos, whence he and his clansmen had fled more than a month ago.

"We can't believe the promises they make of so-called forgiveness. And what do they have to forgive us for? All we did was defend our homeland," he said.

"They" are the pro-communist Pathet Lao who are in virtual control of Laos and who, along with the North Vietnamese, have been the enemy of the Meos for more than a decade.

In this refugee camp on the banks of the Mekong are 6,839 Meo men, women and children and 796 other Laotians, a government official said.

A mile away, down a dirt road, is another group of 2,506 black Thais, also hill and mountain dwellers in Laos until the Pathet Lao tightened their stranglehold on the Vientiane government.

While we were talking in one of the hastily-built bamboo huts, we watched as a Laotian patrol boat with machine guns trained towards our side of the river, cruised slowly downstream.

A few hours earlier, while I had been across the river in Tha Deua arguing futilely with Pathet Lao border guards that Laotian credentials permitted me to work in Laos as a journalist, one of the communist officials said those guns would soon be permanently mounted in mid-river.

"When the dry season comes in a few months we will put guns with full crews on the sand islands that show up when the river is low," the communist official told me.

After four hours of questioning the communists let me cross the river to Nong Khai.

The Thai government is quietly helping the refugees. The Meos, black Thais, and the Laotians have been given land or temporary homes. They get five bowls of rice per day. For the rest, they pool their money and approved representatives go daily to the nearby market to buy vegetables, meat or fish and — on holidays — a few drams of local rice brew.

Although guarded from the outside by Thai paramilitary volunteer forces, the Meo, Lao and black Thai refugees police themselves.

Theft is unheard of in either of the two camps. They have built spillways to carry off the monsoon overflow into the Mekong, keeping their camps from becoming quagmires that are common in other parts of this border town.

The Laotians, who are a minority in the Meo-dominated camp by the river, agree with the Meos who say they will do whatever the Meo chief wants — as long as that does not entail returning to Laos "until the Pathet Lao are gone."

The black Thai camp is on the grounds of a pagoda, with a large, permanent building in the middle to house them.

Many of the Laotians are intellectuals with college degrees. Most of the Meos and black Thais have fought with various anti-Communist armies in Laos over the past decade or so. The Meos have been fighting the North Vietnamese for 30 years.

It seems contradictory to talk separately of the black Thais, the Laotians and the Meos, for in any tally of the population of Laos they are all grouped together. Yet for many of the hill people, this is the first time they knew they had been living in a country called Laos.

Even among the Meos, some who lived barely a mountaintop apart cannot communicate with each other. All they knew was their patch of "ancestor land" inhabited by their clan.

But now there is a sense of community among these nearly 10,000 people, who have come to realize that their future is bound up together.

And what is their future? Some want to go to the United States.

And the others simply say, "We'll never go back...until the Pathet Lao are gone."

And rare is the person in this part of the world who believes in that eventuality.

Ann Landers

Hates to be 'dry'

Dear Ann Landers: I do not agree with your notion that people who don't drink have an advantage over those who do. No way.

For health reasons I can't touch a drop of alcohol. For many years it didn't bother me. I thought I was better off without it. But suddenly I'm the oddball. It seems like these days people won't take "no" for an answer. They just bug you to death to have a drink. When you refuse, they consider you some kind of freak.

Then there's this problem of being the only one who is sober when everyone else is plastered. The profanity, the pinches in the funny and the off-color jokes would seem funny if I weren't stone-cold sober.

The worst of it is when we get home after the party and my husband says, "You were sure a stick-in-the-mud — a real wet blanket." It really hurts. Ann. Sign me —

Dry Is Dullsville

Dear Dry: When you see your letter in print, I hope you'll recognize the flaws in your thinking.

You don't owe it to anybody to "have a drink." And your friends have no right to pressure you. Moreover, anyone who thinks they have to put up with profanity, off-color jokes, and funny pinches is pathetically, insecure. The fact that you'd like to get stiff so you could accept behavior that is offensive when you're sober should tell you something about yourself.

That husband of yours sounds like a real winner. People who must get their jollies out of a bottle are a pretty sad lot. Stop feeling sorry for yourself, Toots, and start to feel sorry for THEM. They need it.

Dear Ann Landers: Your advice might work for some but it didn't work for me. You praised "Brown Eyes" who took her errant husband back when he discovered "the sample" was ample." (She reported he has been a perfect husband ever since.)

Well, "the sample" WASN'T ample for my tomato and now he had decided he wants to buy the product. The woman is a tramp and was mixed up with two married men before she got hold of mine.

I'm sure he'll come back on his knees eventually. Ann. My question is, when he does should I take him? —

Getting Ready

Dear G.R.: SO the sample wasn't ample. I'm sorry. But how can I advise you when you give me no information? How long have you been married? Are there any children? How old is Lover Boy? How old are you? How old is "The Sample"?

When he comes back and you can fill me in on the details, please write again and I'll try to help you.

Dear Ann Landers: Your answer to "Sleepless Nights," the girl who was terrified by obscene phone calls, was sensible. You told her not to say a word — just hang up. May I make another suggestion that worked very well for me?

Keep an old-fashioned police whistle by the phone and when the creep calls, give him a blast that will crack his eardrum. I did it twice and I haven't heard from him since. Love The Peace and Quiet

Dear Love: Thanks for the suggestion. It makes sense and I endorse it.

Parents, what should you do if your teenager is having sexual relations? Ann Landers's new booklet, "High School Sex And How To Deal With It — A Guide For Teens And Their Parents," gives no-nonsense advice on how to handle this delicate situation. For each booklet, send 50 cents in coin plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Don't fake looks

By Jean Adams

APPEARANCE: (Q.) I talked to Richard several times on the phone and got to know him, although he had never seen me. After he met me he told me to get lost! This was the second time this had happened to me. Both boys said looks didn't matter, but they did.

No boys like my looks. What can I do? Help me! —

IN PAIN IN PENNSYLVANIA

(A.) My studies show that appearance is an important influence in a boy's decision as to whether he likes a girl. As males mature, however, appearance becomes a less prominent factor.

You can take heart from this. But you can also take two important steps now. When you are where boys will be, look your best. Also avoid trying to make your main impression on a boy over the telephone, sight unseen. When he finally sees you he tells himself you have been trying to trick him, which may be true. Be honest. Let him see you face from the beginning. He may like what he sees.

HURT: (Q.) Gene and I broke up. He told me he wanted to go out with other girls. He is now going steady with one. I love him and want him back. I know that I was not an ideal girl friend. I took advantage of him a lot of times. If he came back to me things would be different. I want him to know.

I have thought of doing drugs to kill the pain in my heart. Please help me. —

ALONE IN ALABAMA

(A.) Life has a lot of hurt and pain. Sometimes that teaches us more than the joyful times do.

You can ease the hurt and pain by going out with another boy.

You can also be friendly with Gene. But make it just friendship, not life-or-death drama. A new romance could grow

Moscow man hurt

TANNERSVILLE — A Moscow R.D. 1 man was seriously injured late Tuesday night, but state police do not know how he was hurt.

Donald Meade, 28, was found by troopers on patrol lying in the middle of Interstate 80, near its junction with Interstate 380.

Meade, who was reported in guarded condition in the General Hospital of Monroe County, is suffering from amnesia, police said and does not recall what happened.

Police theorize he was either struck by a hit and run vehicle or else he was thrown from a moving vehicle.

Shoppers force beef price down

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

Consumer resistance was credited this week with lowering beef prices. Bargains also were available in chicken and eggs in cities covered by UPI's regular survey of food prices.

Elinor Guggenheimer, New York consumer affairs commissioner, said the drop in beef prices apparently occurred because consumers cut back their purchases.

In Los Angeles, a low of 67 cents a pound was reported on ground chuck. It was 89 cents in Grand Rapids and Honolulu, compared with an average of 96 cents a pound last March 16, the base week for UPI's survey.

Chicken prices also have been increasing steadily, but whole broiler-fryers sold for as little as 49 and 51 cents a pound in Los Angeles and Dallas, and 55 to 59 cents in Jacksonville, Fla., San Francisco and three other cities, compared with the 58 cent average last March.

A dozen large grade A eggs were only 53 cents in Los Angeles and 55 cents in Dallas, Grand Rapids and Jacksonville, Fla., well below the March average of 77 cents. But the high of 99 cents in Boston was 22 cents above the average. Even the high represents a protein bargain, with a serving of two eggs costing less than 17 cents.

The New York City Department of Consumer Affairs said the cost of feeding a family of four dropped six-tenths of one per cent last week, partly because many stores in its sample offered beef specials and some had pork specials.

Offsetting these decreases was a 10 cent jump in the cost of a five-pound bag of sugar. However, the same size bag was only $1.07 in Los Angeles, compared with the $2.26 average in March. Honolulu's $1.87 was the week's high.

Nutrition needn't taste bad

By LORA SHARPE
Family Fare Editor

STROUDSBURG — Lunch box packers can make a child's midday meal a treasure trove or a tasteless untreat.

As the first day of school approaches, harried mothers might be wondering — after new shoes and clothes are bought — what Johnny can eat this year that will taste good and be good for him.

The Record asked some area food specialists to concoct some nutritious ideas for lunch box meals. While the recipes were collected with children in mind, parents might want some samples in their lunch boxes or brown bags.

Fruits and nuts can be added to several recipes to give them a nutritious boost. Fruits are good vitamin sources; nuts help provide protein.

Bar cookies, cakes and muffins can all be made with fruits. Muffins are good with apples and walnuts.

Rice pudding can be made with crushed pineapple and frozen in individual containers. The pudding should thaw by lunchtime.

A banana boat can be made by slicing the bananas lengthwise, dipping them in lemon juice and rolling in flaked coconut. Banana halves brushed with lemon juice can also be spread with peanut butter.

A child's craving for peanut butter should not necessarily be discouraged. Peanut butter is good nutrition, it contains substantial amounts of protein and calcium.

For a variation on the standby peanut butter and jelly sandwich, cooks might try grilled sandwiches.

Instant pudding can be elaborated with the addition of peanut butter. Kay Galozzo, nutrition intern at the Nutrition Program for the Elderly, discovered the following recipe for pudding: For each two cups of liquid, use half a cup crunchy peanut butter. Use vanilla, chocolate or butterscotch pudding. Make pudding according to directions. Freeze in individual containers.

Nut bread and fruit bread can be used for dessert and spread with butter, jam or both.

Cake topping of finely chopped peanuts, sugar, ground cloves, cinnamon and nutmeg can enliven plain cake and add nutrition.

Cold chicken can be placed in any lunchbox. Cold meat can be filled with chopped egg and rolled into cornucopias for a nutritious lunch.

An interesting beverage idea is the mixture of two parts orangeade with one part cranberry juice cocktail. A salad might even be snuck into the box with fruit added.

Oatmeal cookies, with molasses in the recipe, can provide a little extra nutrition. Fresh vegetables such as carrots, cauliflower, raw green beans, lettuce or celery can be used as side dishes.

The vegetables should be kept crisp and cool. To keep vegetables cool, a larger plastic bag with ice chips can be packed over the vegetable bag.

Thermoses can do a lot more than keep milk cold. Hot soups can fill thermoses and hot dogs can even be cooked inside. To cook a hot dog, fill the thermos with boiling water and submerge the hot dog.

If you're partial to Chanel No. 5 but cringe at the $40 price, take heart: for only $14, Murray Poznak will sell you Sherrel No. 36, his avowed imitation of the famous perfume.

Or if inflation forces you to side sadly past the cordials at the liquor store, drink up. You can buy relatively inexpensive imitations of Drambuie, Galliano, or almost any liqueur you like.

The growth of the imitation-liqueur business leaves a bad taste in the mouths of brand-name makers. And Chanel thinks the Sherrel operation stinks. There is talk in both the perfume and booze industries of taking the imitators to court. The copiers contend they are unfrilled, saying they have deceived no one and done nothing illegal.

Whether their copies are the equal of the designer originals is something else. Only slight scientific tests by the observer suggest that the imitations get pretty good marks as long as you keep them out of the hands of perfume and liqueur connoisseurs and as long as none of the real items are close at hand for comparison.

Sniffing out imitation perfume proved much trickier than detecting copy cordials. In the bottle and on the skin, for example, Sherrel No. 3 is quite like Arpege by Lanvin.

But both the user and observers agreed that the original has a much more subtle fragrance. With fewer nuances, the odor of the copy is a bit brash, but it retains its strength longer. Arpege sells for $29.50 per ounce; Sherrel's version costs $11.75.

Poznak, president of Sherrel Perfumers, sells mainly by mail. He has just one retail outlet, in his headquarters at 8383 Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90211. Sherrel offers 47 "copy cat" fragrances for women and 41 cologne copies for men.

Drinkers have three types of substitute liqueurs to choose from. The highest-priced but most convenient are finished cordials with fanciful names and jazzy labels, usually right next to the real thing on liquor-store shelves. At one Washington, D.C. store, for example, a bottle of Grand Mariner at $9.99 sat next to a copy, Liqueur Madeline, which sells for $6.99.

Next comes creative cordials, a new line sold at some department stores, gourmet food shops, and liquor stores on the East coast. Each $1.98 bottle contains about a pint of flavoring and sweetener, and the user must add a matching amount of alcohol.

You can make it up by the drink or by the bottle, and mixing is easy enough for even a drunk to manage. (If you go on the wagon, you can use the stuff straight for cooking or ice-cream toppings. Conceivably, chocolate fanatics could drink Dutch chocolate mint right out of the bottle.)

If you add alcohol, the suggested quantity costs a minimum of about $1.50, bringing the total cost to about a third of many brand-name liqueurs.

Finally, there's Noiro's, an extract that looks like something from a kitchen spice cabinet. To make a cordial, a user combines the extract with sugar, warm water, and alcohol. The French product has been around for 80 years, but was not widely available in the United States until the proliferation of stores catering to winemakers. A 4-ounce bottle costs $1.39, requires up to two cups sugar, and makes a fifth of liqueur.

What about the taste of the imitation cordials?

In an informal sampling of the six flavors of creative cordials, reactions ranged from "yeech!" (in response to a copy of Kahlua) to "pleasant, very pleasant" (after a swig of imitation Drambuie). Though welcomed on its own, the Dramabue copy went down like spiked pancake syrup when alternated with sips of the genuine cordial.

However, the imitations were quite acceptable to tasters who infrequently drink cordials, particularly those who try to avoid swallowing anything that burns all the way down. The copies may be less fiery because mixing can cut their alcohol content to half that of a conventional cordial.

Joel Greenfield, president of Creative Cordials, and Sherrel's Poznak contend the quality of their copies is up to the originals, that the low price is due solely to cutting out the cost of prestige and frills.

"We really feel that people are entitled to have good fragrances without paying an arm and a leg," says Poznak.

Methodists offer day care on mountain

MOUNT POCONO — Day care for children of working mothers is being instituted along with the Nursery School at the United Methodist Church in Mount Pocono.

Carol Haslam and Cilica Wooters, both experienced teachers are working together to plan activities for the all-day program.

The Day Care Center will open Sept. 2 and will be available five days a week from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m.

Due to state regulations no child under three years of age can be enrolled.

Persons wanting information may call Mrs. Haslam at 894-8794 or Mrs. Wooters at 839-9747.

The Nursery School Program, which has been in operation all summer, will continue under the direction of Carol Haslam and Pat Austin.

Beginning Sept. 8, children may attend two or three-day sessions on Monday, Wednesday, or Friday.

The morning session runs from 9 a.m. until noon; with the afternoon session from 12:30 until 3:30 p.m.

For information on the nursery school, interested persons may contact Mrs. Haslam at 894-8794 or Mrs. Austin at 894-8878.

Brochures describing both programs are available.

GOP club set

POCONO LAKE — The Top of the Mountain Council of Republican Women will meet at 6 p.m. Aug. 11 at the home of Mrs. William Quinn, Pocono Lake. A covered dish dinner is planned for the meeting. All Republican women are invited.

Mrs. Martha Kitchen, chairman of the Advisory Board to the Area Agency on Aging for Monroe, Pike and Wayne Counties, spoke at the July meeting of the council.

Picnic planned

STROUDSBURG — A picnic will be held Saturday for the patients at the VA Hospital, Wilkes-Barre. Those persons planning to go should meet at the VFW Post, Stroudsburg, no later than 9:30 a.m.

Garden patch: Cuke wilt

By JOHN E. WITHROW
Monroe County
Agricultural Agent

Heat makes us humans wilt, but insects make cucumbers wilt. Bacterial wilt of cucurbits — cucumbers, muskmelons, pumpkins, and squash — is caused by the striped and 12-spotted cucumber beetles. The bacteria are carried to plants when beetles feed.

Affected plants initially show signs of wilting and drying of individual leaves. These leaves may show cucumber beetle chewing injury. Later, all the leaves wilt on one or more laterals or on the entire plant. Wilted parts may recover at night, but they wilt on successive sunny days and finally die.

Wilt-causing bacteria overwinter in the bodies of the striped and 12-spotted cucumber beetles. The beetles and bacterium are intimately related. If the beetles are eradicated, the disease disappears.

It hibernates in the digestive tract of a few beetles. In the spring the bacterium finds its way through the feces of the carriers to the young plants. It can enter the plant tissue only through deep wounds such as produced by beetles when they feed. It is never carried on or in the seed.

The bacteria swim through the droplets of water into the xylem ducts through which they migrate to all parts of the plant. When beetles chew on invaded leaves, which they seem to prefer, their mouth parts become smeared with the bacteria. This is then carried to the next three or four plants on which the beetles feed.

Sometimes a diagnostic test for bacterial wilt can be made. If you want to try it, first cut a wilted stem near the crown and squeeze sap from the newly-cut stem. Watch for a white exudate. Then touch a clean knife to the cut surface and slowly withdraw the knife from the stem. Watch for a white ooze that strings out in a fine thread between the newly-cut stem and the knife.

Presence of the white exudate and the stringing out of this ooze is a positive test for bacterial wilt. Positive test results are easier to obtain for cucumber and for some squash than for muskmelons. The disease is more prevalent on cucumber and muskmelons than on pumpkin and squash.

Diseased leaves, laterals, or entire plants should be pulled and destroyed. Cold winters will do much to destroy the overwintering beetles. A few plants in the garden may be protected by enclosing them in cheese cloth tents or covering with hot caps.

To prevent bacterial wilt with insecticides, it is essential to start sprays as soon as plants crack the soil or immediately after transplanting.

Repeat applications every five to seven days until plants start to vine. Plants may be protected with methoxychlor or carbaryl (Sevin), although carbaryl may injure very young plants.

Medal winners named; auxiliary officers set

STROUDSBURG — The Ladies Auxiliary of American Legion Post 346 awarded three Americanism medals this year.

Winners were: Diane Dennis, a student at East Stroudsburg High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Dennis; Amy Adelman, a student at Notre Dame High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Adelman; and Robyn Marsh, from the Stroudsburg Middle School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Farry, Sr.

The auxiliary has also announced its officers for the coming year.

Officers are: Mrs. Willita Strunk, president; Mrs. Helen Counterman, first vice president; Mrs. Bertha Taffinger, second vice president; Mrs. Gertrude Blitz, treasurer; Mrs. Stella Plattenburg, secretary; Mrs. Bertha Becker, chaplain; Mrs. Nancy Ace and Mrs. Betty Strunk, senior and junior sergeant at arms; and Mrs. Almira Schmidt, historian.

Just Between Us —

Well, how did you beat the heat? Or was it vice versa? Some people just closed the windows, pulled the blinds and sat as still as possible, caring as little as possible, and steamed in the murky dimness.

Others ignored the energy crises and their own budget to run their air conditioners full blast or succumb to temptation and went out and bought one. Still others found temporary relief riding in air conditioned cars despite the price of gas.

Many people found relief in pools and swimming pools with every wayside creek lined with cars and splashing families, sometimes clothes and all. Air conditioned eating places had packed waiting lines of those who couldn't face cooking at home.

But an amazing number of people ignored the heat to carry on with previous commitments in one of the busiest weekends of the summer. Including the golf matches at Glen Brook where the quote about "Mad dogs and Englishmen go out in the midday sun" could have added "and golfers."

At The Pocono Record clam-bake there were even softball and volleyball matches in progress with the less hardy seeking the illusion of coolness by standing ankle deep in the pebbly creek. None of their appetites seemed diminished as they ate their way through the long afternoon.

Picnics and clambakes at least had the advantage of cool and comfortable clothing which those attending weddings, garden parties and class reunions lacked. But that didn't keep anybody from looking their handsome best with pride apparently providing its own insulation.

Two of the biggest and hand-somest affairs of the weekend were Hilda LaBar's garden party and the Litts' wedding with glowing reports from both.

The class reunion of SHS '55 was also a gala affair with a family pool party in the afternoon, which was a great idea for showing off the offspring which this stage of their lives centers around, but also led to the sacrifice of a lot of many carefully scheduled new hair-sets.

For the reunion dinner, however, it was the grandparents who inherited the children and house full of company. I don't know how the others coped but I just left them in the river until the house cooled down enough to make sleep a reasonable if not immediate possibility.

The thing is when it's that hot most people think that as long as they're going to be uncomfortable they might just as well set some records along the way, and even come to take a certain pride in weathering it.

Certainly makes certain occasions memorable. The thing most people remember about my wedding was the fact that when the bridesmaids entered the church where the guests sat perspiring valiantly their horsehair hats wilted right down over their faces. Everybody will have his own "remember when" for this summer, too.

Just the same I'm glad the current heat wave didn't last much longer as tempers were beginning to fray. It was high time the Poconos returned to the blessed comfort of having to pull up a blanket in the middle of the night.

4-H horse show set

GILBERT — The Monroe County 4-H Club will hold their Horse and Pony Achievement Show at 10 a.m. Aug. 16 at the West End Fair Grounds, Gilbert.

There are 31 classes for equitation available for entry.

There is no entry fee.

All 4-H'ers must enter the grooming and showing classes.

Six ribbons and a trophy will be awarded in each class. The first three winners in each class will be eligible for the regional show to be held Sept. 6 at the Lehigh Valley Fair Grounds.

Each horse entering the regional show must have proof of a negative Coggins test within six months of the show. The test determines whether the horse has equine infectious anemia or "swamp fever."

All 4-H members participating in the county show must have accident insurance.

Kiddie Day on tap at Dansbury Park

EAST STROUDSBURG — The Dansbury Park in East Stroudsburg will hold its annual Kiddie Day Saturday which includes activities in the pool and playground plus a bonus of free food to wrap up a summer season.

Among the events will be a grease pole climb for half dollars, wheel barrow races, pretzel eating contests, a peanut hunt of color-coded peanuts, a tug-of-war, water balloon contests, potato sack races. At the pool there will be water polo, a sweat shirt race, several contests such as the craziest dive, the biggest splash and several races for prizes. Local merchants have donated food, ice cream and soda to wrap up the afternoon.

Disaster drill being planned

STROUDSBURG — Planning for civil defense disaster drill scheduled for this fall is underway according to Joel Keller, Monroe County civil defense director. Keller said the day-long exercise is expected to involve a simulated airline crash somewhere in the county.

He said fire departments, ambulance corps, the hospital, coroner, police, and amateur radio operators will be involved in the exercise. Keller said he will meet with fire department representatives and other officials to determine what the simulated tragedy will entail.

Keller added that he expects a formal meeting will be called in a few weeks to map out the drill.

$56,000 grant not enough

Bridge repair too costly for Pike

MILFORD — A bridge in Lehman Township is still standing, but Pike County Commissioners' hopes to reconstruct the bridge sank Thursday.

Commissioners were informed by a four-member investigating team that it would cost too much money to reconstruct the Saw Creek Bridge in Lehman Township even with a $56,000 federal grant.

At the last commissioners' meeting, Foster Sankey, assistant district engineer with the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation (PennDOT), said a $56,000 federal grant was available to Pike County.

Sankey said the money could be used for removing obstacles on roads or strengthening, widening or replacing state or county bridges. He explained the money could not be used for maintenance of existing bridges.

After an inspection of the Saw Creek Bridge, Fred Schoenagel, county engineer, reported it would cost between $130,000 and $150,000 to replace the bridge.

He said the $150,000 figure did not include re-locating the hazardous approaches to the bridge that might involve property acquisition or land condemnation.

Commissioner Warner Depuy estimated a "complete overhaul of the bridge might cost $300,000 or $400,000. I can see if we wanted to spend $400,000 we might qualify for the grant," he said.

Schoenagel also pointed out that it would be hard just to widen the bridge, noting that the waterway opening is "25 per cent as large as it should be."

"It would be hard to get DER (Department of Environmental Resources) to go along with widening the bridge without altering the waterway," he said.

Even though the Saw Creek Bridge is structurally sound, commissioners wanted to widen it because it is currently too narrow for present day traffic.

The bridge is only 16 ft. wide, while present state standards call for 28 ft. widths.

Lehman Township Supervisors had informed commissioners that the bridge serves major developments in the township including Mountain-top Estates, Winona Falls and Timothy Lake Campgrounds. The bridge would also serve future homeowners in Wildwood Estates and Pocono Ranchlands.

Commissioners asked Clifton Berger, county co-ordinator, to evaluate two other county bridges and a township bridge in Childs Park that might be eligible for the grant.

Berger along with Schoenagel and Philip Schroeder, PennDOT district supervisor, will report back to the commissioners at the Thursday, Sept. 4 meeting.

According to Sankey, the federal funding program will pay 70 per cent or up to $56,000 of any state or county highway construction project. If a bridge in Pike County is owned by the state, the state will pay the remaining 30 per cent of the project cost.

PennDOT officials had originally suggested the commissioners repair a state bridge in Delaware Township (Adams Bridge). Although the Adams Bridge is narrow, it does not have the heavy traffic of the Saw Creek Bridge.

Area unemployment rate hovers around 10 per cent

STROUDSBURG — An unemployment rate of 10.2 per cent was reached in northeastern Pennsylvania in June, reflecting a 1.7 per cent decrease from the first of the year.

Ben Overholts, assistant manager of the Bureau of Employment Security in Stroudsburg, reported the rate for May was 10.4 per cent which dropped .2 per cent in June.

Overholts said increased employment at area resorts does not have a large effect on the unemployment rate in the county because many of the resort workers come from outside the county.

He said only the year-round resort workers usually reside in the county and are counted in the total labor force.

For the week ending Aug. 1, Overholts said there were 1,700 continued claims filed in the county and 105 new claims for a total of 1,805 weeks claimed.

In 1974 for the corresponding week, there were 515 continued claims and 68 new claims for a total of 583 weeks claimed. The figure represents an increase of over 300 per cent.

In the first week of July there were 1,776 claims compared to 1,585 in June, 2,073 in the first week of April; and 2,027 in January.

"We know there are some people out of work in the area who have exhausted all their benefits," Overholts stated. But, he added, he had no way of knowing how many people fall into that category.

As of January, there were about 24,100 available workers in the county's labor force. This excludes children, retirees and those unable to work.

A county resident who is unemployed could obtain as many as 65 weeks of unemployment benefits.

Overholts said the bureau expects the unemployment rate to rise about 1.5 per cent each year in June because of high school and college graduates which become part of the total labor force.

Overholts cautioned that the 1,805 claims filed in Monroe County last week could also reflect New Jersey residents who worked and therefore filed in Pennsylvania. Conversely, he said, some Pennsylvania residents could have worked and filed in New Jersey.

Jobless figures for 1973 show the average rate of unemployment for the entire year was 3.7 per cent with a high of 5.3 per cent and a low of 2 per cent.

In 1967, the unemployment rate was 1.1 per cent, however, in 1958 during a recession, the county's rate held at 6.4 per cent.

Police blotter

Two injured

MARSHALLS CREEK — An Islip, N.Y. couple was injured late Wednesday night when their car was forced off the road and smashed into a tree three and a half miles north of Marshalls Creek.

State Police at Swiftwater said James A., 25 and Barbara Herzog, 21, were treated and released at the General Hospital of Monroe County. Their car was forced off of Girard College Road. It hit the tree, which then snapped off onto their auto.

The other car did not stop, police said. It was heading north on the road when the accident occurred about 11:10 p.m.

Equipment stolen

MARSHALLS CREEK — An amplifier valued at $800 was stolen from a Smithfield Township bar on August 1, according to the state police at Swiftwater.

Police said the Fender Bassman amplifier, owned by Vernon White, of Saylorsburg R.D. 1, weighs about 60 pounds, is black with a silver front and stands about four feet high. It was taken from the Stumble Inn.

Auto, truck collide

MARSHALLS CREEK — The driver of a car escaped injury Wednesday when his car was struck by a tractor-trailer on Rte. 209 in Smithfield Township.

State police at Swiftwater said Warren R. Wright, 49, of Muncie, was southbound on the wet road when a north-bound tractor-trailer slid into his lane. The rig was driven by Ardell Hansen, 51, of River Falls, Wis. Damage to the rig totaled $2,000. The car, worth $7,000, was destroyed.

Cycle stolen

MARSHALLS CREEK — State police are looking for a 1972 Honda motorcycle reported stolen Tuesday from a storage shed at Vacation Valley resort.

According to state police at Swiftwater, the bike belongs to Robert Barth, 16, of East Stroudsburg R.D. 1. It has no registration and is red in color.

Tax collector not satisfied

HoJo pays back taxes — almost

By FLIP DeLUCA
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — A payment of 55 per cent of the 1973 property taxes due on Howard Johnson's in Delaware Water Gap was made Thursday by co-owner Harry F. Lee but the county treasurer says he is not satisfied.

Lee said he set his own property value of $1,207,900 and paid $22,648 in taxes. County records show the property value at about $1.8 million which comes to $35,561 in taxes.

Robert J. Coleman, county treasurer, said Thursday, "As far as this office is concerned, he (Lee) still owes the full amount."

Lee said he paid what he believes the property is worth because an appeal of his 1973 assessment has not been resolved.

That contradicts a statement by Chief Assessor William H. Fetherman that the appeal was denied because Lee never went to Fetherman's office to discuss how the assessment could be changed.

Fetherman said the "routine procedure" is to send a notice to the person who filed the appeal, informing him whether the appeal was granted or denied.

The assessor's office does not keep copies of the notices it mails out and therefore he has no way of proving Lee actually was notified of the denial, Fetherman stated.

The Howard Johnson's property, which is carried on the tax rolls as Leisure Time Properties Inc., was removed from a county tax sale scheduled for today. The reason was pending court action on a boundary dispute between Delaware Water Gap and Smithfield Township, both of which claim right to the tax money since the facility sits on the border line between the two municipalities.

Coleman said if the remaining $12,913 in unpaid taxes plus $4,821 in interest and penalty is not paid, he still can hold a special tax sale and sell the property to recover the taxes.

Coleman said he accepted the partial payment "because it's logical to accept anything I can get. We are $22,648 closer to a settlement," Coleman said taking the partial payment "has no bearing on the amount which is owed in full."

Lee said if the issue of the appeal is decided in the county's favor, he will pay the remaining taxes due.

Coleman said Lee told him he will try to get the issue resolved within the next two weeks.

Mrs. Nancy B. Shukaitis, county commissioner, said the commissioners will meet with Lee and Fetherman next week to settle the matter.

"If the appeal was denied, we will stick by it and he (Lee) will have to pay the whole amount," Mrs. Shukaitis said. "I don't see how the assessment could be changed. I'm sure the time has run out."

According to Fetherman, assessment appeals are heard during the month of September. A resident has 60 days to appeal to the court any decision made by the appeal board.

Tax sale scheduled for today

STROUDSBURG — Between 400 and 450 parcels will be up for sale at today's scheduled tax sale, according to Robert J. Coleman, Monroe County treasurer.

The properties are being sold because real estate taxes from 1973 have not been paid on them. Coleman estimated that as much as $120,000 is involved.

Coleman said he expects several of the delinquent taxes to be paid today.

Property owners who have not paid their 1973 taxes can get their property out of the tax sale anytime up until the time the parcel is sold.

If a person's property is sold, Coleman said, the original owner can start redemption proceedings once court approval is given to the sale, usually in about 60 days.

The property owners have two years to make payment of the taxes from the date of sale. Payment will include the tax, interest, penalty and other related costs.

During the two-year redemption period, the original property owners retain full title and rights to the property, meaning the purchaser cannot alter the property in any way.

The purchaser of the property is responsible for all liens or encumbrances on the parcel. All payments must be made by certified check, money order or cash on the day of the sale, Coleman stated.

'I get so few complaints'

Judge praises district justices

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County's district court system runs "very smoothly," with few complaints from the public, according to the judge in charge of its operation.

"The people we have as magistrates in Monroe County are honest and fair in the application of criminal law," said Monroe County Common Pleas President Judge Arlington W. Williams Thursday.

"I get so few complaints they have to be doing a good job."

Williams, elected to the bench in 1967, streamlined the county magisterial system following 1968's state constitution changes.

Before 1968 there were 40 justices of the peace in Monroe County. They were paid on a fee basis, so much for each complaint.

Now magistrates receive a base salary of $6,000 and 40 cents per person in their districts.

The highest paid magistrate, Mrs. Eleanor Randolph of East Stroudsburg, receives $9,157.60 a year. The lowest magistrate, with the smallest population, is Mrs. Marjorie Shoemaker, who is paid $7,614.40 for Barrett, Paradise and Price Townships.

Williams said the disparity in criminal case workloads of the eight magistrates pointed out in a study released by the state court administrator, is due to a variety of factors.

One factor, he said, is the population of the various districts, ranging from 7,894 in East Stroudsburg to 4,036 in Barrett, Paradise and Price Townships.

Williams said when he established the districts, he tried to have them geographically distributed for the convenience of the public and law enforcement agencies.

"It was my responsibility to determine the district justice districts. We live in a resort county and to give reasonable service I decided we needed eight magistrates."

He said with more people coming into the area, causing more activity during the tourist season, there are a larger number of offenses.

When asked to comment on the practice of "judge-shopping" (when police agencies purposely choose a magistrate or judge from outside the jurisdiction over the home justice) the judge said he had no evidence it occurred in Monroe County.

"I don't think it is a planned effort, (that Mrs. Randolph handles a bulk of criminal cases)," Williams said. "It is just one of those things."

Williams says Mrs. Randolph's daylight working hours, central location and her willingness to be available for arraignments during odd hours on weekends, nights and holidays are reasons for her having nearly twice as many cases as any other magistrate.

State law says criminal cases can be filed anywhere in the county where the alleged offense occurs.

"It's a question of time," Williams said. "If I were the police I would take my cases to the nearest magistrate."

He said if he were to find out law enforcement officers throughout the county were purposely taking cases to one magistrate, he would investigate and report it to the state judicial board.

"I have never had a major complaint," he added.

Williams said he could not see police picking magistrates other than for their convenience, because a magistrate's role in criminal cases is limited.

Extra $50,000 seed grant available for Monroe jobs

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County will receive an additional $50,000 in funds under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) making the total they have available to spend almost $200,000 over the next year.

The county commissioners Thursday received eight requests for workers under the program. Four requests each came from the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau and the Soil and Water Conservation District.

The commissioners said they will consider the most recent requests along with those already received from the Recreation and Park Commission and Mental Health Mental Retardation office before giving out any of the jobs.

The county last week received notice from the state it was receiving $147,605 in CETA monies but could expect to be promised more this week.

The CETA program was established to give employment to those persons who are unemployed, disadvantaged, a minority or a Vietnam veteran and to train them in a skill.

The county currently has 17 employees under the program which is funded by the federal government.

In other matters Thursday, the commissioners said the rental cost for office and classroom space for the Head Start program has been reduced to $11,000 by St. John's Lutheran Church.

basement of the church was $12,000 which was made up of $6,000 for rent and $6,000 for janitorial services.

The commissioners had proposed having a CETA worker do the cleaning of the classrooms but the church said it couldn't afford to train and supervise the man, according to the commissioners.

Besides paying the $11,000 for rent, the county will be contributing $25,137 to the 1975-76 budget for the Head Start program which has a total budget of about $96,000.

In other business, the commissioners authorized preparing of resolutions to the banks in the county which will change the authorized signature for county treasurer from Thomas R. Joyce to Robert J. Coleman, Coleman was sworn in as treasurer Wednesday.

The commissioners approved spending $60 as rental fee for a booth at the West End Fair for the county's Bicentennial office.

Bicentennial coordinators Mrs. Patricia Valence and Russell Woodling said they hope to distribute information on bicentennial attractions in the county.

The commissioners also approved the attendance of a conference in October by George Fox, county vector control agent. There will be no cost to the county. Fox is to address the gathering on gypsy moths, while he expects to hear discussion on ants, snakes, birds and moths.

Shawnee requests shelter

Fire truck out in the cold

MINISINK HILLS — Shawnee firemen have an un-equipped fire truck and no place to put it.

Chief Richard Kerr asked Smithfield Township Supervisors Thursday night for money to build a shelter for the truck and to help equip it.

The fire company recently acquired the truck from the Harrisburg State Airport through the efforts of Sen. Frederick Hobbs.

Kerr said it was too high to fit in the present building and was stripped of all its equipment before they got it.

The estimated cost to get all the equipment the company needs is $9,588, Kerr added.

"We're stuck in between. We need a place for a truck and we need money to put it in service," Kerr explained.

Chairman John Zukowski jokingly suggested firemen get a tent for the vehicle and then said he opposed any spending by the township for the building.

He said the township supervisors want to buy land and build a township municipal building with federal revenue sharing funds and general funds.

"In the past, supervisors have spent little money on a meeting house or facilities for the people of the township," Zukowski said.

Kerr said he wasn't asking the supervisors to supply all the funds for the equipment and explained firemen were checking with the civil defense and other sources for materials.

Supervisor Richard MacDonough asked how practical the requested equipment was for the area.

"It's your own special project and your own special adaptation of how you can make it work. You know how to adapt it to the terrain and the people it must serve," he said.

He added he thought "a lot of things could be shaved" from the list and agreed with Zukowski that money should be spent first for a municipal building.

Zukowski told Kerr that supervisors would not be able to reply to his request until the first or second meeting in October after they've worked on a tentative budget for 1976.

He explained that even then they couldn't be sure how much money they would have to work with.

"We'll have to pull in our feathers also and cut back as much as possible. All indications are it will be a rough winter," he said.

Two-year record released

Social Security reports service

EAST STROUDSBURG — In its two years of operation, an estimated 17,000 persons have been interviewed and 5,780 claims filed at the Monroe County Social Security office.

According to Ray J. Little, manager of the 68 Analomink St., East Stroudsburg office, 9,355 Monroe County residents receive $1,652,000 in benefits each month from the Social Security Administration.

He said the benefits are for retirement, survivor and disability claims and do not include thousands of dollars issued monthly to disabled miners under the Black Lung Benefit Program.

Besides retirement, survivor and disability claims, the East Stroudsburg office processes medicare claims and applications for supplementary security income, the newest benefit program. It was undertaken by the Social Security Administration last year.

The 12 employees of the local office also process social security applications, change names on the cards of new brides and a speaker's bureau is coordinated by Little.

Little said the speaker's bureau provides speakers for organizations wanting to hear of the work being done by the administration.

The local office also provides a call-in service where area residents can transact business by telephone. Once an employee takes the information, an application is filled out and mailed to the caller.

This is of particular value in the case of invalids or those residing in outlying areas and unable to get to East Stroudsburg," Little said.

Red Sox keep rolling along behind Wise

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Rick Wise scattered eight hits for his 15th victory of the season and eighth straight triumph in pitching the Boston Red Sox to a 4-2 win Thursday over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Wise, now 15-6, walked just one and struck out four.

Fred Lynn collected two doubles and a single and drove in two runs, including the winning run in the third inning. The doubles were his 30th and 31st of the season as he vaulted past Kansas City's Hal McRae into the league lead.

A three-run outburst in the third gave the Red Sox their winning runs. Rico Petrocelli opened with a double, a Rickey Burleson single and a walk to Bernie Carbo loaded the bases. Denny Doyle singled to score two runs and with one out, Lynn doubled home Carbo to make the score 3-1.

Boston added an insurance run in the seventh on Carbo's single, a sacrifice and Lynn's two out single.

Mike Hegan hit two home runs to account for the Brewer runs.

Jim Slaton, who had won eight and lost two since June 15, took the loss to even his record at 11-11.

A crowd of 24,817 pushed the Brewers' home attendance for 52 games to 1,093,368.

Philadelphia (UPI) — A two-run homer by Graig Nettles and a solo shot by Thurman Munson Thursday powered the New York Yankees to a 6-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Nettles' 15th homer of the year with Sandy Alomar aboard on a single tied the score at 2-2 in the fourth, and after the Indians went ahead 3-2, the Yankees scored twice in the fifth on Alomar's run-scoring single and a throwing error by Cleveland centerfielder Rick Manning.

The Yankees chased Cleveland starter Don Hood in the sixth when Munson opened with his eighth homer over the leftfield fence. After Nettles fanned, Alex Johnson walked and took third on a single by Chris Chambliss. Jim Bibby relieved Hood and uncorked a wild pitch that enabled Johnson to score.

White Sox, 8-4

CHICAGO (UPI) — Jorge Orta batted in three runs and Nels Nymann two Thursday to help reliever Dave Hamilton to his third win of the season in an 8-4 decision for the Chicago White Sox over the California Angels.

Hamilton took over from Sox starter John Vuckovich with after a walk and none out in the fourth and went the rest of the way, limiting the Angels to three hits. California's last run came in the fourth when Harper stole second and scored on Mike Miley's single.

Orioles, 7-6

DETROIT (UPI) — Hot-hitting Don Baylor slammed a run-scoring double down the left field line with two out in the 10th inning Thursday night to give the Baltimore Orioles a 7-6 victory and hand the Detroit Tigers their 12th consecutive loss—one shy of the club record.

The victory enabled the Orioles to remain seven games behind Boston in the American League East.

Bob Grich and Tommy Davis opened the Baltimore 10th with singles to put runners on first and third off losing ex-Oriole reliever Bob Reynolds. Reynolds struck out Tony Muser and got Paul Blair to hit into a fielder's choice before Baylor ripped his double. Dyer Miller, last of four Oriole pitchers, won it and is now 3-2.

A's, 10-1

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — Joe Rudi hit a grand slam homer and Billy Williams added two home runs to support the four-hit pitching of Vida Blue Thursday night, sparking the Oakland A's to a 10-1 rout of the Texas Rangers.

Blue, in winning his third straight game after three consecutive losses, boosted his record to 15-8.

Oakland trailed 1-0 after four innings but Sal Bando walked to start the fifth and Phil Garner was hit by a pitch. Ray Fosse then drove in Bando with a single and Campaneris scored Garner with a sacrifice fly before Williams hit his first homer to make it 3-1.

Williams added a two-run homer in the ninth, driving in Ted Martinez, who was running for Campaneris. The blow moved Williams into 15th on the all-time home run list ahead of Duke Snider at 408.

Packers

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Green Bay Coach and General Manager Bart Starr said Thursday the Packers and Oakland Raiders would try "to work something out" in the form of compensation for linebacker Ted Hendricks.

Hendricks, who played out his option with Green Bay, signed with Oakland Wednesday.

"We've had some discussions with Al Davis (Oakland co-owner and general manager) over the last few days and we talked again today," Starr said.

"We agreed that until something has been worked out we both should say very little. There really is not much to say at this point except that we're trying to work something out."

Tavern softball

STROUDSBURG — Palace Bar wrapped up its Pocono Tavern League season with its 11th straight victory Thursday night, 9-4 over Stroud Manor.

Joe Smoke and Tom Kishbaugh homered to lead the Palace attack and Bobby Harrison chipped in with two hits.

Denny Hollinger was the winning pitcher. Steve Nauman took the loss.

Pocono women's softball

EAST STROUDSBURG — Jane Alwood slammed a three-run homer and Vicki Rathje cleared the bases with a triple to power Foxwood Farms to a 14-1 Pocono Women's Softball League victory over Bartonville Produce Thursday night.

Jane Ramagli added a two-run homer for the winners, while Sue Rowe homered for the only Bartonville run. Gail Sherwood picked up the win, while Kathy Koberlein took the loss.

Robertson outlasts Dracos

STROUDSBURG — Ann Robertson outlasted Pat Dracos Thursday night to reach the semi-finals of the Stroudsburg Women's Open Tennis Tournament.

Robertson dropped the first set of their second round singles match 4-6, but then came back to win the next two sets by scores of 6-2, 6-3.

Today's doubles matches will pit Judy Rue-Maryann Higgins vs. Honey Hanlon-Barb Reese and JoAnn Schaller-Barbara Christman vs. Barbara Wilke-Janet Cassebaum.

St. John's clinches church championship

EAST STROUDSBURG — St. John's unleashed a 17-hit attack to back Harry Powlous' shutout pitching enroute to a 9-0 victory over Salvation Army in the playoff final of the Monroe County Church League.

Powlous allowed only two hits, both by Jim Gallagher Jr., in hurling St. John's to the playoff championship. Bob Wert led the offensive attack with a perfect 4-for-4 while Gary Smith, Steve Smith, and Jim Reynolds chipped in with two hits apiece.

St. John's will now meet Craigs Meadow in a best-of-three playoff for the league championship. The first game in the series will be held Monday night at Dansbury Park.

Hendricks okays Raiders' contract

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (UPI) — Ted Hendricks, who has been an All-Pro linebacker four times and played out his option twice, began all over again Thursday to earn a starting berth with the Oakland Raiders of the National Football League.

The former University of Miami All-America signed with the Raiders Wednesday after dickering with several pro clubs, and he immediately joined the team in its training camp.

"The signing of Hendricks in no way reflects on our linebacker corps," said Raider co-owner and General Manager Al Davis and Head Coach John Madden. "Any time a top football player is available, we are interested."

Hendricks became available after playing out his option with the Green Bay Packers. He had earlier played out his option with the Baltimore Colts and been traded to Green Bay.

The Raiders declined to discuss terms of the signing, but it was believed Hendricks signed a three-year contract at a lower figure than had been offered by the Atlanta Falcons. Hendricks was on the verge of signing with Atlanta when Falcon General Manager Pat Peppel suddenly terminated negotiations with the player and his agent, Tony Roberts.

"Atlanta made the better money offer," Hendricks said, "but the fact that they weren't a contender influenced my decision. I'm glad they backed out."

Hendricks passed his physical exam Tuesday and could be ready to play in the Raider pre-season opener against the Detroit Lions Sunday in Berkeley. However, there remained the problem of learning the Raiders' system.

"I'm elated to be here," Hendricks said. "Now I can concentrate on football and winning the Super Bowl."

"Physically I'm ready to play against Detroit. But now that (Linebacker Coach) Don Shinnick has thrown this book at me, I don't know if I'll be ready to play. It's a 180-degree turn from what I've been used to."

Royals, 10-2

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Fred Patek cracked starter Vic Albury's first pitch of the game for an inside-the park homer Thursday night, starting the red-hot Kansas City Royals off to a 10-2 romp and four-game sweep of the Minnesota Twins.

The Royals, who completed a 61 homestand, now have won 12 of 15 games under new manager Whitey Herzog.

Packers

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Green Bay Coach and General Manager Bart Starr said Thursday the Packers and Oakland Raiders would try "to work something out" in the form of compensation for linebacker Ted Hendricks.

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Mark Hayes, a second-year professional who thinks "it's a little early" to worry about who's leading, took the first round lead in the PGA Championship Thursday with a three under par 67.

"It really doesn't make any difference who's leading on the first day," said Hayes, 26, who never has been in this position before.

"If this were the third day, I guess I'd really be happy. But it's a little too soon to get too excited."

Two other players who didn't

GET IN THERE — Obscure pro Bob Benson waves his putter at a birdie putt on the tough 18th hole Thursday at Firestone in the first round of the PGA. Benson made it and shot a two-under 68, one behind leader Mark Hayes. (UPI)

Palmer ties Young in Colgate

SUNNINGDALE, England (UPI) — Texan Sandra Palmer edged a step nearer the women's grand slam when she hobbled to a five-under-par 69 Thursday to join Californian Donna Young as the halfway leaders of the Colgate European Open golf championship.

Miss Palmer, 34, from Fort Worth, and Mrs. Young, a blond housewife from Los Angeles, share a nine-under-par aggregate of 139 for two rounds, leaving them four strokes ahead of Joanne Carner of Lake Worth, Fla., with four more Americans, Pat Bradley, Gloria Ehret, Susie McAllister and Mary Mills, bracketed another stroke farther back at 144.

Best of the amateurs so far is Catherine de Prado of France, who scorched to a phenomenal outward 31 on the sun-drenched Sunningdale old course, but then slumped to an inward 43 for a par round of 74 and a total of 145.

Tiny Miss Palmer, 5 feet, 1-1/2 inches tall and weighing 117 pounds, produced man-sized golf in the searing heat to birdie five of the six long holes. But well before she collected her eighth sub-par figure at the 16th, she was in agony from a badly blistered right heel.

"I had to take my shoe off and walk the fairways in my sock because it hurt so much," she said. "Because of it I gradually lost concentration."

Nazareth fireworks show planned for Sunday card

NAZARETH — Nazareth Speedway's 24th Anniversary Firework Display will be presented Sunday along with a combined program of modified and sportsman stock car racing. Starting time for heat racing action will be 6:30 p.m.

Thousands of dollars worth of fireworks will be blasted sky-high. Both ground and air displays will be fired off. Nazareth fireworks expert Joe De Ritis promises the best show in the history of the track.

The modified feature on Sunday will be a 35-lap event. The Fred Wampler, 51, a Denver club pro who quit the tour 17 years ago but has a Los Angeles Open victory to his credit in 1954; Bob Wynn, winless in five years on the tour, and 27-year-old rookie Ed Dougherty, who never touched a golf club until six years ago, were tied with Casper.

Many of the game's bigger names, however, had their problems, with the 7,180-yard South course at Firestone Country Club, one of the longest and toughest ever to host the PGA.

"I don't understand it," Arnold Palmer said. "I didn't feel the course was playing especially hard today." Palmer had a 73.

Nine players were at even-par 70 but none of them bear watching any more than Jack Nicklaus, who said "I played a lot better than I scored."

"I struck my putts pretty solid, but I didn't make much," said Nicklaus, shooting for his fourth PGA title. "Seventy-five per cent of them ended up about six inches short. It was a bit frustrating. I got as little out of the round as I possibly could have gotten."

Nicklaus started by making birdies at the first two holes, and thought he was on his way. It didn't turn out that way.

Tom Weiskopf also was in the group at 70 but he got there a different way.

Weiskopf birdied the last three holes.

"It looked like I was on my way out of the golf tournament, and now I'm right back in it," he said.

The other 70 shooters were Tom Watson, the British Open champion; Al Geiberger, who won the last PGA held here, in 1966; Ray Floyd, the 1969 PGA winner; Jim Dent, Bruce Devlin, Mike Morley and 51-year-old Art Wall Jr.

Gary Player, who did not exactly agree with Palmer's assessment of the conditions, and Hale Irwin were in a group at 72.

"The course is playing, tee to green, as tough as Winged Foot did in last year's Open," Player said. "In certain spots, if you put it in the rough, you're lucky to find it."

Palmer had a 73 even though, he said, "I putted very well." U.S. Open champ Lou Graham and defending champion Lee Trevino also were at 73, the same score Trevino started with in winning last year's championship at Clemons, N.C.

"My problem came from the iron shots — the thing that I've been practicing the most," said

Trevino, whose score would have been higher had he not made a 35-foot putt to salvage his par five at the 625-yard 16th hole.

And then there was Johnny Miller.

He had an eight-bogey, no-birdie 78, 11 shots behind, that just about eliminated any chance he had to win a major title in 1974.

"I bogeyed No. 2 (a short par-five that produces more birdies than any hole on the course) and that killed me," Miller said. "I got going in the wrong direction and couldn't stop. I'm ready to go home for some lessons."

Hayes is not exactly a household name even among the lesser-known players on the PGA tour. His only finishes in the top 10 this year in 24 starts — a third place at the Quad Cities and eighth at Milwaukee — came while all the top players were at the British Open.

But Thursday, he hit 16 fairways and 16 greens and got the benefit of two favorable rulings on his incoming nine holes.

"I hit everything pretty good," said Hayes.

The key to his round was the middle holes. He made 30-foot putts for birdies at the seventh and eighth, saved par from three feet after coming up short at No. 9 — as did just about everyone in the field on that 465-yards into the wind — and made a four-footer for birdie at the 10th.

On the 11th hole, Hayes missed the fairway, his drive landing on a cart path. He was allowed a free drop on the fairway since it was within two club lengths. And at No. 18, he got to place the ball after it imbedded just past a fairway bunker.

"I was pretty fortunate," Hayes said. "I dropped the ball and it rolled in the trap, so I got to place it, and there was a good area to set it down."

Then he hit a four-iron 190 yards to the green and very nearly rolled in a 12-foot birdie putt.

Benson, who got into this tournament when he placed third in the club professional championship last year, took only 27 putts in fashioning his 68. He made two early birdies, then bogeyed the third through fifth holes in succession.

"When I was two under, I got excited," he said. "Then I went to one over very quickly."

He brought it back with three birdies coming in, though, including an 8-footer on the final green, and did not appear the least bit awed at performing in a major championship for the first time. Then again, you might expect that from someone who taught Jack, Teddy and Mrs. Rose Kennedy how to play golf in the late 1950's when he was only a teenage apprentice pro in Palm Beach, Fla.

"They didn't really play that much," he said.

Even-par frustrates Jack; Player mad at Weiskopf

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — It was a frustrated Jack Nicklaus who shot an even par 70 Thursday in the first round of the PGA Championship.

Nicklaus, seeking his fourth PGA title, birdied the first two holes, but had trouble from there on getting putts to fall.

The Golden Bear, winner of this year's Masters, did everything well but put the ball in the hole but still couldn't fault his putting.

"It was a bit frustrating," said Nicklaus. "I probably got as little out of the round as I could get. I played a lot better than I scored. I struck my putts good all day. They just wouldn't drop."

Two of Nicklaus' three bogeys were on par three holes, the 230-yard fifth and the 230-yard 15th, on both of which he used a one iron.

"Three of the par threes are really short par fours," Nicklaus joked. "So I actually had two pars and a birdie."

player-of-the-year polls.

"In one, they didn't even vote me in the top four," he said. "Not in the top four. Do you believe that? And I won two majors (the Masters and British Open) and very nearly won all four. I won 11 tournaments all over the world. I became the first player ever to break 60 in a national championship (a 59 in the Brazil Open)."

Player has not, however, had such a good year this time around.

His only tournament victory came last winter when he won the South African Open for the ninth time.

Your Horoscope

Frances Drake

LEO

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — Break your day down to definite essentials and try to eliminate the unimportant. Do not engage in untried ventures except where "dry runs" seem feasible.
TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — Some complications indicated in personal and money matters. Don't let pride keep you from consulting others as to how to cope.
GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — Fine Mercury influences. Fervor and ambition should mark the day. Especially favored: aviation interests, written matters, and all communications generally.
CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — Differences of opinion need not result in rifts. Get together with those concerned and, with calmness and your innate sense of humor, iron things out.
LEO (July 24 to August 23) — A problem now may be in handling activities smoothly, without ruffling tempers or leaving yourself open to misinterpretation. But forewarned is forearmed!
VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — You will face competition now, but it won't stymie you. Rather, it will prove a pleasing challenge. Get in there—and win!
LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Aspects are not entirely friendly, but instinctively you should be able to adjust. Compare all offerings discerningly. Weigh opinions, decisions carefully.
SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23) — You may face some stiff resistance, and blockades to progress that you did not anticipate; but you can find ways to skirt them. Use your keen perception and will power.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — It may be difficult for you to put over your ideas and opinions but, in discussions, do not be fanatical and, certainly, start no disconcerting arguments.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Merely "minding the store" will not be enough now; you must pay closer attention to trends, study the attitudes of others and don't make promises you can't keep.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — Better than average planetary aspects today but your set-up calls for more reviewing, reconstruction. Keep things in proper focus.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — Great activity indicated in your area — which should prove highly stimulating. Especially favored: outdoor interests, community projects, cultural activities.

YOU BORN TODAY, ruled by the Sun, are one of the most dynamic of all personalities. You have enormous pride which, if working FOR you, can lead to unusual achievement but, if expressed in self-importance, can lead to arrogance and hauteur — with the result that you will make many enemies. You have a great love for luxuries and will work assiduously to attain them. Your talents are many, but as an executive or salesman, you would be tops. Other fields in which you could excel: the stage, the law, writing.

Contract — Six Hearts.

South to make twelve tricks after West's opening lead of the king of spades.

Here is a curious hand the likes of which you've probably never seen. It was not actually dealt; the hand is a composition by Bruce Bell, well-known New Zealand expert.

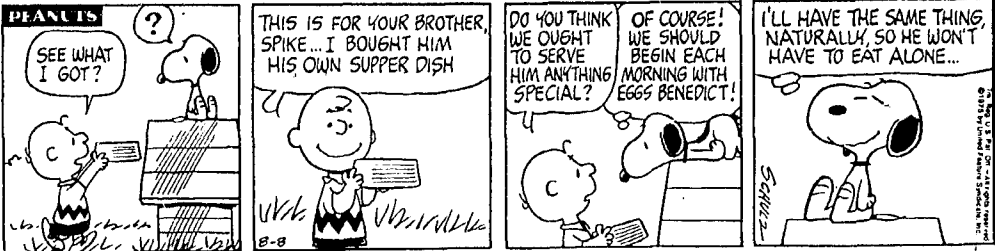

It would seem that declarer must ultimately lose a heart and a club to go down one, but careful play brings the slam home.

South ruffs the opening spade lead with the six and returns the deuce of hearts, finessing dummy's five after West follows low.

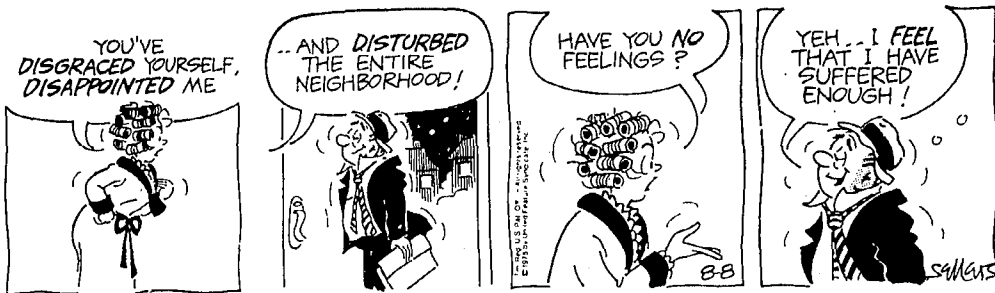

After ruffing the nine of spades, South cashes the king of diamonds, continues with the queen to dummy's ace, Declarer exits with the eight of clubs, won by East with the queen, and East is forced to return a diamond. South ruffs with the jack and West's apparently certain trump trick is trapped — whether he elects to overruff or underuff South's jack.

Note that declarer must arrange to ruff all five of dummy's spades in order to achieve a position where he can obliterate West's seemingly certain trump trick. Smother plays, of which this is an example, are so rare that they're practically nonexistent, but they're great fun on the few occasions when they do arise.

Voice of Broadway

By JACK O'BRIAN

NEW YORK — Ronee Blakley curled her feet under herself, making herself comfortable on the couch of her hotel suite. The curtains were drawn open, bringing a rush of sunlight streaming into the room.

It had been a long day for the luminous new star of "Nashville," director Robert Altman's 24-character epic portrait of America. There had been three coast-to-coast trips in the past two weeks, Ronee said, for interviews and television appearances. "Plus a batch of stopovers all over the country," she added.

"I'm trying to keep my perspective about all the good things that have happened because of the film," Ronee said. "Nashville" is the first film I've ever made, my first dramatic role. I'd made my living through the years by composing and singing my songs. Now there's acting and entire new directions for my career."

Ronee drew much on her own experiences for her role as the queen of country-and-Western music, teetering on the brink of mental collapse. "In many ways I felt I was born to play that entertainer," Ronee said. "I wanted audiences to feel her depths and her highs, her frailty and her strength. She came alive on that stage, but she was afraid that one day there would be no getting back from the collapse of her mind. She becomes lost."

One startling scene, in which Ronee lapses into a haunting stream-of-consciousness nervous breakdown while performing on stage, was written by Ronee the night before it was shot. Director Altman encourages his actors to improvise, to bring as much of themselves to their roles as they want, not locking themselves into the dialogue.

"We tried to make everything spontaneous, to bring a certain truth to the film," Ronee said. "I'd never felt as out of control as the character I play, but I've been through times in my life when I was very depressed, very down. I've been down that road, but you come back."

She's come a long way. Born in Oregon and raised in Idaho, Ronee saw her musical gifts blossom early. By the time she was out of college, she was singing her own songs in small clubs around the country. "Sure, a lot of it was rough," she said. "There would be 100-mile motorcycle trips to some of the gigs, a lot of times long weeks without being able to get a job. But that gives you strength. You can't crawl away into yourself and hide when the times aren't good. You can't give up."

A childhood accident when Ronee set fire to herself while playing with sparklers still haunts her. "There were a lot of operations," Ronee said. "I had third degree burns which left terrible scars on my body. Scars can do awful things to you. The experience can mess up your mind. The skin grafts were very painful, but they put you into contact with life. You begin to realize that there's a lot more to the beauty of a person's soul than to mere physical beauty."

The isolation she might have felt enriched her creative drive. She is a modern Renaissance woman. Besides her acting and musical skills, she writes lots of poetry and free verse, paints, sketches and designs. She lives in a furnished apartment in Hollywood. "I don't like to be tied down by possessions," she said.

Being cast in "Nashville" was one of those incredible hand-of-fate dreams. "Richard Baskin, the musical director of the film, is a good friend of mine," Ronee said, "and he asked me to come see Altman who was interested in using some of my songs in the film. He told me he was going to use my songs, but that all the parts in the movie were already cast."

She's working now on her second album (the first was recorded three years ago) of new songs, new feelings, new musical dreams. She plans to put together a band to accept some of the club dates that are pouring in.

"And then . . ." Ronee said. "I don't know. I have so many creative things I want to do and the vibrations are so good."

We can feel them, Ronee, we really can.

Food and migraine headaches

For years, I have had devastating attacks of migraine. I've tried almost everything, but get at best only a bit of relief.

Recently, I met someone who says he was cured of migraine by avoiding alcohol and cheese. Could this kind of allergy cause migraine?

Mr. V.S., III.

Dear Mr. S.:

There is no doubt about the relationship between some foods and migraine and vasolar headaches.

Recently, this question was answered in the Journal of the American Medical Association by Dr. Donald J. Dalessio of the Scripps Clinic in La Jolla, Calif.

His suggestions struck me as valuable and I transmit them to you and other readers who suffer from unaccountable attacks of migraine headache.

Dr. Dalessio suggests that "patients with migraine eat three well-balanced meals a day, and avoid an overabundance of carbohydrates at any single sitting."

If, by past experience, it is possible for you to establish a relationship between a particular food and your migraine you must, of course, eliminate it.

Dr. Dalessio itemizes the following ideas:

- 1) No alcohol, particularly red wines and champagnes.
  - 2) No aged or strong cheese, particularly cheddar cheese.
  - 3) Avoid chicken livers, pickled herring, canned figs, pods or broad beans and chocolate.
  - 4) Use monosodium glutamate sparingly.
  - 5) Avoid cured meats, such as hot dogs, bacon, ham and salami if there is the slightest suggestion that headaches are provoked by them.
- Trial and error is a difficult, but a worthwhile approach to this and other allergic problems.

I just moved to an area where people, especially me, get bitten by catfish and stin-gray. Believe me, they hurt. Do you know how to relieve this pain?

Mr. H. U., Fla.

Dear Mr. U.: Those who deal with this problem agree that the best way to relieve the pain is to quickly immerse the injured hand or foot in hot water. Apparently, this is effective because the heat destroys the toxic substance that is responsible for this unpleasant bite.

DR. LESTER COLEMAN has prepared a special booklet entitled "What to Do About Ulcers." For your copy, send 25 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Lester L. Coleman, M.D., (Ulcer Booklet), P.O. Box 5178, Grand Central Station, New York City 10017. Please mention the booklet by title.

Free advice

There's no doubt about it. Doctors are finally coming into their own. They are the darlings of the talk shows, the heroes of television and the most sought-after guests at cocktail parties everywhere.

The other night I lucked out and found myself seated next to my doctor at a dinner. "How much free advice do you figure you've given out tonight?" I chided.

"Every professional gets it," he smiled good-naturedly. "I mean how many homes without a piano does Liberace get invited to?"

"But how do you survive?" I asked. "People must drive you crazy with their symptoms."

"First," he said, "I divide them. I tell them I'm strictly an Ob-Gyn man. That weeds out all of the men. I re-route them to a party where an urologist is holding court or to a theater where I know an internist is in attendance."

"Then, I divide the women. I listen to the hysterical ones first. The ones who have just read a Reader's Digest story which gave them three months to live. I always reassure them you lose something in the condensation."

"What about the others?" "I tell them even though it is a cocktail party. I take my work quite seriously and would not presume to offer a diagnosis on a simple interview. I then invite them to come over to a corner and take their clothes off for a full professional examination."

"You sound flip," I said, "but it must bug you to dispense all that free medical advice all the time."

"Not at all," he grinned. "After the women have fled, I too circulate among the guests. Tonight alone, I have saved $550 in professional fees. That CPA over there gave me two new deductions I hadn't even considered, the attorney in the corner advised me on my partnership, the educator trying to eat his salad told me what to do about my son's reading problem and that professional golfer at the end of the table just knocked three strokes off my game."

"Incredible," I said.

"By the way," he said, "as a newspaper humorist, aren't you going to say anything funny all night?"

"Sure," I said, "take two aspirins and call me in the morning."

"Is that supposed to be funny?" he said.

"You thought so when you charged me $10 for it last April."

DIAMOND JIM'S

* Lobster that Diamond Jim would be proud of. The Mountain's UNIQUE 1 1/2 pounds of Lobster stuffed with Crabmeat. And its own claws prepared only as a true Bostonian could. No mess, no fuss, just lots of good eating. A gastronomic delight. We believe our Lobsters, prepared in this manner . . . are the finest anywhere.

* Shrimp Ke-Bob. Large, tender, Juicy Shrimp resting on a bed of rice, blanketed with Parmigan and Tomato Sauce. Prepared as delightfully as Nellie resting over our Bar.

* Clam lovers of the world rejoice. Clams Demetri has arrived at Diamond Jim's. Its waiting for its fans to devour them. Imagine fresh Clams stuffed with a special Garlic Dressing topped with crisp bacon.

* These and other fine foods such as Prime Rib, Filets and Sole are all here for your enjoyment in Mountainhome. Just pick up your phone and call 595-2533 for Reservations or to answer any questions you might be wondering about on how such good food can become a reality in the Poconos.

NOTICE
The Department of Community Affairs will conduct two public hearings on the development of grant applications for funds which may be reallocated pursuant to Federal Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. The public hearings are to be held in Room 22, Pennsylvania Department of Justice, Capitol Annex Building, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania on Friday, August 15, 1975. The first hearing will pertain to the use of funds in non-metropolitan areas of the State and will begin at 9 a.m. The second hearing will pertain to the use of funds in metropolitan areas and will begin at 1:00 p.m. The purpose of the hearings is to obtain the views of citizens on community development and housing needs, present the Department's proposed application, and provide the general public with an opportunity to participate in any revisions, changes or amendments that are deemed necessary. Written testimony submitted in lieu of oral presentations will be accepted by the Department. If received prior to September 1, 1975, persons desiring to present formal testimony are requested to contact the Department prior to the date of the hearings. One written copy of such formal testimony must be submitted on, or prior to, the date of the hearings. Correspondence may be directed to: Mr. Ronald B. Lorenzo, Department of Community Affairs, 218 South Office Building, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, 17120.

Working Around The Clock For You!

Some advertising messages are fleeting . . . they're seen or heard for a few seconds . . . and then they are gone.

It's not that way when you advertise in classified. Your message, in print, can be read and re-read . . . any time of the day or night.

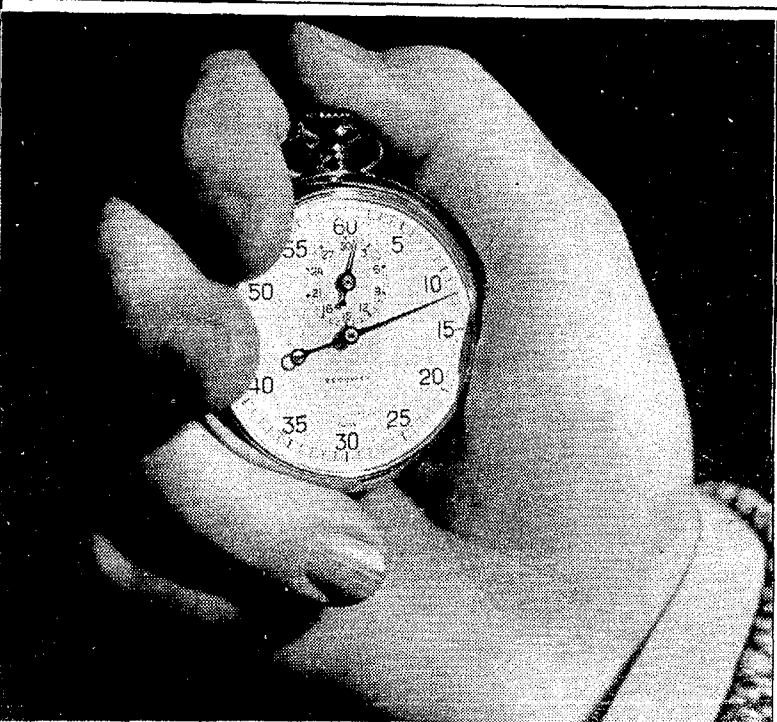

When you're looking for results, look to classified. One phone call puts your ad in print and it keeps on working for you . . . right around the clock!

Make Every Second Count

A stop watch records but does not stop time. If we could press the spring and stop time when a given task is finished the watch would indeed be a wonderful machine. But, "time marches relentlessly on." If we do not use it wisely we waste it, or worse, we use it for deeds and thinking better left undone or banished from the mind. Of course this does not rule out recreation, relaxation, fellowship or time for thought. These, when of the right kind, are wholesome and beneficial.

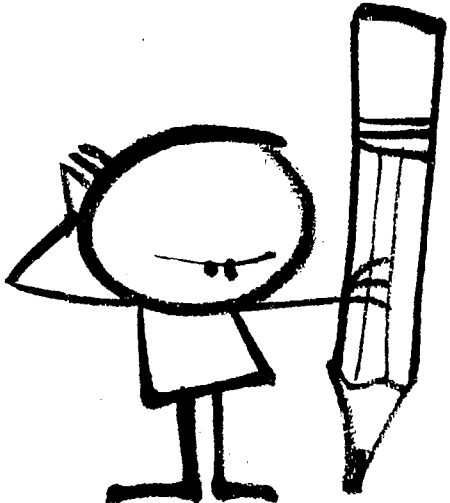

As to our church, even though we put in only our appearance it is not a waste of time. When we put work and our energy into church affairs then there is a lift and a generation of spirit and hope. Put aside the proper portion of your valuable time for your church. It will prove OPERATION LIFT for you.
